The University of Georgia club hockey team uses jerseys during multiple seasons. According to the team, this style of white CCM jerseys were replaced early in the 2012-13 season when the team went with a new design. Photographs found online depict the team wearing similar jerseys during a game with Kennesaw State University on September 21, 2012. The last player to wear number 1 during this time frame was goaltender Kevin Smith. The three color twill G logo on the front is sewn to the jersey. The numbers are three color sewn twill. A pair of embroidered dog head patches are sewn on the shoulders. The CCM logo is heat pressed on the right rear hemline. The design is similar to the jerseys worn by the NHL Buffalo Sabres from 1996 to 2006.
