

University of Georgia Aaron Phillips 2018 game used jersey, size 56.

Atlanta area native Aaron Phillips played junior hockey for the Atlanta Knights in the USPHL before coming to the University of Georgia. As a junior, he was named team president of the Ice Dogs. As part of the Bulldogs Battling Breast Cancer Pink In The Rink Weekend, the UGA Hockey Club wore these specialty jerseys donated by Managed Medical Transport on October 5 versus the University of Alabama-Birmingham. The jerseys were auctioned off in an online auction following the game with the proceeds benefitting St. Mary's Health Care Systems. This white, black and pink JOG jersey has reinforced shoulders and elbows. All logos and numbers are screened on. The new Georgia Hockey Club logo dominates the front. There is light game wear consisting of a hole in the upper left arm and a puck/stick mark on the front.

