Be... ready (Luke 12:36) Are you ready? The servants in today's Gospel are. Lamps lit, loins girt, waiting for their master's knock at the door. They know he will come sooner or later, so they don't sit around. They make preparations, stay awake, and keep doing what they know they need to do to prepare. What a good analogy for our life of faith! Faith isn't just believing something abstract. It's about acting on what you believe. It's about acting on what you believe. It's about taking the necessary steps that flow from your belief. The Israelites in the first reading listened to God's direction and prepared the Passover as they waited for their deliverance. Abraham, in the second reading, left his homeland and struck out for the Promised Land. They held onto their hope that God would be true to his promises. You can do that too. You probably already have a sense about what you could do— so do it!! Remember that you're not alone. You're being supported by all the saints and holy people who have eagerly waited for God as well. You have the Holy Spirit living in you to remind you that God is not trying to catch you off guard; he's eager to celebrate with you and bless you. If you need encouragement, look at the surprising way the master blesses his servants in the Gospel: he puts on an apron and serves them. He even goes so far as to put his faithful servant in charge of all his property. Like this master, God our Father wants to share his blessings with all his servants. He is pleased to give them—and us—the kingdom.

Dr. Ray Guarendi shares his story of how logic led him home to the Catholic Church. He found out that, contrary to his Protestant misunderstandings, the Church is coherent and never contradicts herself. Dr. Ray explains how the answers to his objections to Catholicism were both Biblical and believed by the earliest Christians. Explore the logic that led him to the fullness of truth.
