

June 2015

Nine shooters enjoyed a very relaxing and fun afternoon at the Rocky Mountain Regional warm up match held at Smithmoor Range yesterday. A monsoon rain was expected to hit at any time, but it fortunately avoided us. Perhaps God could see the fun we were having and didn't want to ruin it. We did have some tricky winds and had to use magnets to hold the turkeys and rams up. It made good practice for sure. Of note was my Dad, Gary, continuing to improve by shooting a 24. He actually tied Travis and they had to settle it with a shoot off on turkeys. It was sudden death with no sighters and Dad prevailed after three rounds. Tom, Kimber, and Dawna are all relatively new shooters that will be shooting next week and wanted to get a little practice in before the big match. All of them did reasonably well and should be a lot more confident for next weekend. Next weekend is going to be fun! Thanks to all who came out to shoot yesterday. If a man is only granted so many good days in his lifetime, I am worried I have been using all of mine up!

Take care and hold center, Cody
