This image was captured by a webcam on March 23, 2006 at 14:04 hrs and shows an object near the summit of the Kephren Pyramid. The object is highly reflective and presents a clear structure. It is difficult to determine if it faces, or is positioned behind the pyramid.

Despite the fact that the object has a circular shape in the main photo, it has an oblong shape in the image taken 47 seconds earlier. Possible explanations: balloon, airplane, kite, insect. If we make a more detailed observation, it appears like a different object.

no investigation on air traffic
