

Dear Jessica,

I know you will be shocked that I have gone, but I am confident it is the correct decision for me and for all of you. Please do not be angry or sad. I will be at peace, which is important to me. People may say some things about your Dad and I, but I want you to know they are not true. I am just not strong enough to stay and fight. My fighting days are over.

Please do well in school and follow your dreams. You have so much to offer the world. Your greatest strength is your enthusiasm. Let this serve you well in life, as it will give you the strength to accomplish your goals. You also have learned to laugh at yourself. This too will help you in life. Being able to laugh at yourself helps you to handle your failures. Success is always easy, but failure is where your true character comes out. You are a lovely girl, with a kind heart. I know you will make a wonderful wife and mother.

Follow your dreams. Be kind to Andrea. She loves you so.
I love you and will be watching over you.

I will love you forever,

Mom
