DAY 73

SUBJECT: LIFE LESSONS

Throughout my life I have discovered three lessons that determines how everything will transpire in your life. The first life lesson is DECISIONS DECIDE SEASONS. We live in seasons. Every new decision you make starts a new season in your life.

For example, a person's decision not to graduate college will more than likely create a season of financial hardship. A person's decision to do something illegal will create a season of trouble. Seasons do not change until your DECISIONS CHANGE.

Most people wait for things to happen, never realizing that life is waiting on them to make things happen. When you learn that decisions decide seasons life will treat you better. The second life lesson is what YOU SOW YOU WILL REAP.

What you put out you will get back MULTIPLIED. It is guaranteed. A seed that is planted in good soil ALWAYS multiplies to become something more. For example, if you do harm to one person, many people will do harm to you later.

If you sacrifice for the good of one person, many people will sacrifice for the good of you. Life only regurgitates what you gave it. If you give life a mediocre effort it will give you mediocre results.

For instance, people who give a mediocre effort in advancing their career will receive mediocre opportunities, minimum pay, average respect and little influence. Remember, what you give comes back MULTIPLIED.

The third and final life lesson is WHO YOU TRUST DETERMINES YOUR FOOT STEPS. The person you believe is the one you will follow. If you trust the wrong person your decisions, perspective and effort will produce negative outcomes.

If you trust the right person everything you do will work in your favor. You may not trust many people but you will trust someone. You will believe the advice of at LEAST one person. Whomever you choose to believe will decide your future.

These three life lessons has determined our past, present and potential. You have the power to decide what you want to give your life. However, life decides how it will respond to what you gave it. The choice starts with you.

TAKEAWAY: Life RESPONDS to what you give it. Give wisely!
