Autumn Magic

Magical and spectacular images of fall foliage are not the result of technical tricks or specialized camera equipment but more so the result of good planning.

Spectacular autumn photography is a time sensitive event typically lasting 8 to 12 days. You must be prepared to capture nature's beauty before the wind blows the colourful leaves off the trees.

The key to super shots is to find a location in the offseason that is filled with trees and leaves that could change colour then return to this spot during the peak of the autumn season. The best light situations are the hour window around sunrise and sunset the light at this time produces a nice warm glow and the colours are enhanced.

If you are shooting during the daylight hours you will need a polarizing filter to enhance the blue sky and to reduce unwanted reflections and neutral density filters to darken some area while enhancing others.

Autumn is the best time of year to be creative – the brilliant colours the, the low light , water reflections ,water droplets and the fine mist or haze over water areas. Practice close-up shots of the textures of the plants and trees.

Children playing in the leaves, animals scampering around looking for food for the winter months ahead. Your shots are limited only by your imagination.

In conclusion the best advice for autumn photography is to plan ahead, use the proper filters and tripods and have fun while you experiment and capture some fantastic shots.
