Eragon is my favorite fantasy book so far. It is the first book of the Inheritance cycle and it is amazing. The book is about Eragon, normal farmer boy, from the Palancar Valley, who finds a mysterious blue stone in the forest. Then he realizes the blue stone was a dragon egg and his perfectly normal life turned into an adventure full of thrills and fights. While learning ways to defend himself against monsters that hate dragon riders, he also stumbles into the world of magic, where certain words can easily and instantly kill you.

As he travels with his mentor, Brom they go on to hunt for the Raz'zac, which are mythical creatures that are immune to magic and were meant to prey on humans. Before finding them they meet an assortment of characters that shape up the story intricately and full of adventure.

As I said before, I think this book is the king of the fantasy genre. It is compelling adventurous and very well written. This book makes any person want to read the next 3 books. I would recommend it to anyone middle school age or higher.
