

WHITE

409 Burch

This Victorian Painted Lady was built in 1892 in the Eastlake Carpenter Stick Style by G.A. and Augusta C. Schenkowitz. The Whites purchased the home in July 1987 and have since put in countless hours of restoration including stripping and refinishing hardwood floors, woodwork, wallpapering and painting. One major project included burning all the paint off the exterior and repainting. This home features beveled glass fleur-de-lis entry doors, an unusually carved fireplace and an open golden oak staircase. The focus of all projects undertaken has been to preserve the integrity of the original architecture.

SCHADLE

512 Fenelon Place

This home was built by C.B. Trewin in 1897 as an example of "modern" architecture and is located next to the Fenelon Place Elevator. The house is now owned by his great-granddaughter Amy and her husband Steve Schadle. This home enjoys a rich history never leaving Amy's family. Furnishings include many family heirlooms such as century-old leather books, some of the home's original furniture and a Tiffany chandelier. Features include parquet floors laid by C.B. Trewin, a slide-through pocket door, a built-in ice box with an outside door for the ice man's deliveries -- even an elevator!

KIEBEL

565 Fenelon Place

This Free Classic Queen Anne home was built in 1896 by Harry Tredway, founder of the hardware manufacturer, the Tredway Company, now known as Kretschmer-Tredway. Upon entering this home, you will be greeted by a massive oak front door. The central reception hall with its prominent staircase and exuberant woodwork, features a cozy inglenook near the floor to ceiling mission brick fireplace. The comfortable birdseye maple library displays stainglass and inset bookcases. Tin ceilings, wood sliding doors, and ornate copper and brass hardware grace this home throughout. You will remember with fondness this vigorous Queen Anne home with its towers, broad veranda, balcony, bays and widow's peak.

THEISEN

658 Fenelon Place

This Georgian Revival home was believed to have been built in 1857 by George Cannon, a local grocer. A disastrous fire destroyed its third floor ballroom, cupola and a porch that stretched across the entire front. A two story section attached to the southwest side was added about 1900 and the corresponding eastern addition in 1920. It features 2 marble fireplaces and floor to ceiling windows on the main level. The spacious dining room and parlor boasts the original embossed tin ceiling and oak floor. It had been subdivided into apartments in the late 1950's. In 1985 it was completely gutted and restored by its former owner to capture the original beauty and memories of days gone by.
