Our Goals

The STLTCPR was established to provide an educational and network resource to the trade compliance professionals in the St. Louis region. We aim to reduce regulatory risks and compliance costs associated with international trade, while increasing opportunities for growth within the region. We aim to promote the trade compliance profession in its interactions with the offices of government regulatory agencies in the region.

Our Approach

We have bi-monthly meetings that include a focus topic and time for discussion on hot issues and issues of concern to the membership. These meetings are generally held on the 2nd Tuesday or Wednesday of the month from 6 to 8 pm at the location of one of our members. Networking is an important aspect of our meetings. Besides meetings, we provide updates and email blasts on critical compliance issues.

Ted Galantowicz Scholarship Fund

In honor of our founding member, STLTCPR is raising money to award to local students interested in International Business. Please visit our website for additional information.

Story Behind the Scholarship:

Our organization was founded by Ted Galantowicz, who worked for various St. Louis based international companies after leaving U.S. Customs & Border Protection where he served as Port Director for St. Louis at one time. Ted has a passion for Trade Compliance and spearheaded the effort to create a local St. Louis trade compliance group. He always welcomed students into our meetings and taught trade compliance at seminars within the region. Ted has since retired, but the organization he started continues to grow and thrive. We thought there was no better way to honor Ted's dedication to trade compliance than creating a scholarship that supports students interested in international trade.
