Great Start to The 1st Annual Chippewa Falls Antique Show & Sale

Article & photos by Lynn Koszuta

Our ride to the show was a dreary rainy one, but once we arrived, it was gorgeous. The first thing Al and I noticed were these old buildings all over the grounds, it was quite picturesque. Once we entered the antique show everyone was super friendly and informative, especially promoter Jerry Fults. Jerry Fults and others worked hard to put together this quality antique show and sale that had something to offer for everyone! There were lots of people in attendance including a variety of pets who attended the show.

Out & About Happy Thanksgiving

Hard to believe that Thanksgiving is next week already. Time to start planning your meal and grocery list. Not sure what I like least, doing the grocery shopping or standing in line to check out. Making the dinner is my favorite part, it is the only day that everyone stays out of the kitchen. So, I enjoy my peaceful time in the kitchen.

We visited one of Tia's top two college picks, Lakeland University. She liked the professors and the study abroad program. She now has to decide between Alverno and Lakeland University. Mekenzy has her first hockey game tonight, she is excited and proud to be a captain this year.

Weather Doesn't Keep Buyers Away From Attending 1st Annual Chippewa Falls Antique Show & Sale

Article & photos by Lynn Koszuta

The 1st Annual Chippewa Falls Antique Show & Sale was held on September 30th and October 1, 2016. The event was held in the Exhibition Hall C at the Northern Wisconsin State Fairgrounds in Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin. The show featured dealers from the Northern Wisconsin Antique Dealers Association.

This newly organized antique show in Chippewa Falls features numerous quality experienced exhibitors with competitive prices. There was a wide variety of primitive cupboards, glassware, brass and copper ware, fishing and hunting items, Native American Indian, jewelry, watches and stoneware, just to mention a few of the antique items available.

Mary Lou's Crystal was there to repair your damaged crystal, china, porcelain or pottery while you wait. Her and her husband Bob are well known for their quality work and travel to many shows.

Chippewa Falls has that local charm of a small town, where architecturally significant buildings house a bustling business community. The city's oldest business is the Jacob Leinenkugel Brewing Company, established in 1867, the brewery has been operated by the Leinenkugel family for five generations. There are also many other attractions to visit such as Irvine Park and Zoo, which is a FREE park of over 300 acres of natural and scenic beauty and wildlife, or you could visit the River Bend Vineyard & Winery with wines made from grapes grown right in Chippewa County.

Watch Auction Action Antique News for 2017 listings of the event and plan a weekend trip to Chippewa Falls for a fun filled weekend of antiques and site seeing. For additional information regarding the show contact Jerry Fults at 715-617-4310

1936 Chrysler Imperial Sedan Brings $55,000 at Yoder Classic Car Auction

Article & photos by W. Yoder Auction

All the major car brands were represented in this auction. There were early sedans, great muscle cars and beautiful pickups. This was a not to be missed auction for the car enthusiast.

Wayne Yoder puts together fantastic specialty auctions for classic cars, toys, country store items, advertising and memorabilia. If you have a collection you need to downsize, give Wayne a call today!

When asked why he became an auctioneer, he will tell you it is because he enjoys the many different types of people he meets across the country that come to the auctions and the action each auction provides. In 2008, Wayne became the Wisconsin Auctioneer State Champion when he participated in the competition held every year at the Wisconsin State Fair located in Milwaukee, WI. "It was a wonderful experience that I will never forget." He had participated in the competition 3 times prior to winning and each year learned from his mistakes and bettered himself. His hard work shows through in every auction that he has.

Currently, Wayne strives to have the most professional and technologically advanced auction company in Wisconsin that gets the highest bid amount for his consignors. This has brought many buyers from many different countries to the auction (via internet), as well as many different states. A fully staffed crew on auction day and the "regular" crew during the week, Wayne makes the most of the time allotted to him to dedicate to producing a great auction.

The first Wednesday of the month, he has his radio show on WOSH where he talks about many items that come across the auction block.

He looks forward to seeing you at our next auction and remember: Bid High, and Bid Often!!

The National Museum of Cambridge Glass

On April 3, 2002, the National Cambridge Collectors, Inc. proudly opened a premier glass museum in downtown Cambridge, Ohio. It houses a superb collection of Cambridge glassware produced by The Cambridge Glass Company from 1902 to 1958.

The museum is located at 136 South Ninth Street, one block south of the main street of Cambridge, and is open April through October with hours of operation shown at the bottom of this page.

At right, you can view an interview conducted with Cindy Arent, one of our NCC Board Members who is the chairperson of the Museum Committee. Click on the arrow to start it. Here is a chance to hear first-hand about our world-class museum. If you'd like to see it a little larger, click on the picture while it is showing and you will be taken to the YouTube page where it is presented in a larger size.

The year 2002 marked the 100th anniversary of the making of the first piece of Cambridge Glass (the Big X pitcher, shown below and to the right). The Museum Grand Opening celebration took during NCC Convention week on June 27, 2002. We're easy to find - here's a map of the Cambridge area.

Museum Contents

Big X Pitcher The museum features over 6,000 pieces of glassware made by the Cambridge Glass Company, with an interpretive area demonstrating how glass was made from gathering, shaping, etching, and engraving.

The Sample Room features the door and shelving from the original factory, and a dining room display features a table setting arranged on period furniture much as it would have appeared in the early 1900s.

Guests can do their own rubbings from original etching plates in the Education Center, and view a movie made in the 1940s by the Cambridge Glass Company.

Pieces of Cambridge Glass and jewelry made from Cambridge Glass are available for sale in the gift shop, along with books and other items throughout the museum.

A Brief History of the Cambridge Glass Company

by Mark Nye

The Cambridge Glass Company came into being for two main reasons: the desire of the citizens of Cambridge, Ohio, to secure a new industry for their city and the desire of a location for a new glass plant being planned for by the National Glass Company, based in Pittsburgh, Factory Postcard Pennsylvania. The site would have to be near sources of natural gas and coal, both of which Cambridge had. The citizens of Cambridge were represented by the Cambridge Improvement Company. In 1901, the two parties came to an agreement. The citizens of Cambridge would provide the site and National Glass Company would build the factory which it would own.

To open the factory, a new company, The Cambridge Glass Company was incorporated by five individuals. Three men associated with National: Myron Case, Andrew Heron, Addison Thompson; and two local individuals: Fred Rosemond and Casey Norris.

After construction began, National went looking for an individual to run the plant and head the newly formed Cambridge Glass Co. They selected Arthur J. Bennett, a native of England but a long time resident of the United States. Mr. Bennett's background was in the field of importation and retailing of European china and glassware and was well known in the New York and Boston areas.

Construction of the plant was completed in early 1902 and in May of that year the first piece of glass, a pitcher, was produced. During the first years the ware produced by the Cambridge Glass Co. came from molds previously used by other glass companies and was typical of the glassware of the period: table sets, jugs, bowls, molasses jugs, jars, tumblers and lamps.

It was not until 1904 that the first original Cambridge line, Radium, was designed and produced. The year 1904 also saw the introduction of the first Cambridge trademark: NEARCUT. Pressed into the glass, it was also used as two words, one above the other.

From the very beginning, the Cambridge Glass Co. was an independent company that leased its facilities from the National Glass Co. Indications are that by 1906 Mr. Bennett was the principal stockholder and hence the owner of the Cambridge Glass Co, but still did not own the physical plant.

1907 saw the financial collapse of the National Glass Company but this had no effect on the operations of the Cambridge Glass Co. and facility lease payments continued to be paid to National and its receivers. After three years of legal and financial proceeding that dissolved the National Glass Co., the Cambridge Glass Company was able to purchase the buildings in which it was operating. Now, eight years after it made its first piece of glass, Cambridge Glass Company was a completely independent company whose principal stockholder was Arthur J. Bennett. The company prospered under his ownership and around 1910 acquired the rights to the idle factory of the former Byesville Glass and Lamp Co. and expanded its operations into that plant, located a few miles south of Cambridge.

Through the early years the company operated its own coal mines and consumed many tons daily producing raw gas to fire its melting pots. In addition to the gas it produced, the factory used natural gas from its own wells and also bought gas from other well owners.

By 1920, the trend was away from the heavy pressed and imitation cut glass and toward lighter pressed and blown ware. Also by this time several etchings had entered the Cambridge line, among them Marjorie, Triangle C named after Mr. Bennett's daughter. The early 1920s saw all operations stopped at the Byesville plant with all work now being done at the main plant in Cambridge. At the beginning of 1922, a new trade mark, the now familiar letter C enclosed in a triangle, was introduced. During the early to middle 1920s a variety of opaque colors were brought into the Cambridge line, most being produced for only one to three years. Later in the 1920s transparent colors became very popular, replacing the opaques. Complete dinnerware lines, plain and etched, were being sold as was a large selection of decorative and accessory items. The company continued to produce a complete line of pharmaceutical items, a line that was continued until 1954 when the original company ceased operations.

The 1930s were prolific years. Colors such as Carmen, Royal Blue, Crown Tuscan, Heatherbloom and Forest Green were developed and brought Cambridge Factory to market. New dinnerware lines and numerous new etchings including Rose Point, became part of the Cambridge line. All this took place in spite of the effects the Great Depression had on company operations.

During its peak years, Cambridge had as many as 700 employees working three shifts with all three furnaces running at full blast. Mr. Bennett continued as company president; his son-in-law, Wilber L. Orme, was vice-president; William C. McCartney was corporate secretary and sales manager; G. Roy Boyd was treasurer and J. C. Kelly kept the plant running as factory superintendent. In July 1939, Mr. Bennett sold his controlling interest in the company to his son-in-law, Wilber L. Orme. Mr. Bennett continued as company president until his death in February 1940.

Mr. Orme continued to develop new lines and colors. In 1950, Cambridge's Square Pattern won top honors across the United States for its modern design. Soon, however, the demand for fine handmade glassware began to decrease and at the same time, competition from foreign and machine-made glass began taking its toll. In 1954, Mr. Orme decided to close the plant, ending one of the best and most prosperous glass companies the world has ever known.

Shortly after it ceased operations, the company was sold to a firm headed by Sidney Albert of Akron, Ohio. The plant reopened in March 1955. Sales were poor and in 1956 Morrison Industries Inc., of Cleveland, Ohio, acquired possession. Sales continued to be slow and management problems grew. The company closed its doors for the final time at the end of 1958. In November 1960, Imperial Glass Co. of Bellaire, Ohio, acquired the remaining assets, exclusive of the physical plant. Included in the sale to Imperial was all remaining stock, molds, etching plates and portable equipment. For a time in the 1960s, Imperial did produce Cambridge by Imperial but sales were not what was expected and the lines were discontinued.

1984 saw Imperial forced into bankruptcy and eventual liquidation of all its assets. At that time National Cambridge Collectors purchased a number of the remaining significant molds, all of the etching plates, except those for Rose Point, and other Cambridge related equipment. Glass companies such as Fenton Art Glass and the now defunct Summit Art Glass also acquired Cambridge molds.

Prior to use, Fenton altered the molds they purchased thus causing no major problems for collectors. Summit Art Glass did not and a wide array of reproductions entered the market place. Many of the pieces produced by Summit were in colors never used by Cambridge. However, some were and a few continue to cause confusion for Cambridge collectors. The Rose Point etching plates were never used and were subsequently acquired by NCC, Inc.

In 2006 NCC Inc. was able to acquire all the Cambridge molds owned by Summit Art Glass. A few insignificant Cambridge molds remain in private hands but these offer no significant problems for today's collectors. The Cambridge molds that still remained following the Imperial liquidation were sold for scrap iron.

The Cambridge Glass Co. factory buildings met their demise in 1989 when the owner decided they had deteriorated beyond repair and were hazardous. All that remains today is a weed-filled field, a sad sight to see if you were fortunate enough to have seen the factory with its many artisans and laborers busy at their trade. For sale in the gift shop, along with books and other items throughout the museum.
