Out & About

We are celebrating our 23rd Anniversary!

It is hard to believe it has been 23 years. We still do everything ourselves, as we are a family run business.

Mailing the paper the past few weeks, it has been really hot in the press room. We enjoy hearing about all our subscribers wonderful finds and the good time they had at the event they attended. So here's to many more years of auctions, shows, shops and antiques.

The weather has been wonderful to us the past few days. I hope that everyone had been out enjoying them. Whether you are taking in an auction or strolling through a show. Maybe even enjoying some air conditioned comfort at an antique shop or show.

With the girls graduation party over, they have started packing for college.

Tia just learned who her roommate is and what dorm building she is in.

She was lucky and got the Sophomore dorm where they are apartment-style layout. It is a suite where there is three double rooms, two single rooms and two bathrooms with a living area, kitchen and study on each pod floor.

Mekenzy has been packing clothes so that I can ship her seasonal items as she requests. Then, she will ship me back her other clothing. I think she will find she will need all of them, as the winter weather there is quite brutal. Her and her roommate have everything figured out on what each other are bringing. Now we just need to be able to pack the truck.

HISTORY OF THE FOSTORIA GLASS COMPANY 1887 - 1986

The Fostoria Glass Company began operations in Fostoria, Ohio, on December 15, 1887. This site was chosen because natural gas at a recently opened field in the area had been offered at a very low cost to attract new industries. However, the field was so short-lived that in 1891, Fostoria moved to Moundsville, West Virginia, where there was an abundance of gas and coal, and other needed materials were close by.

During its first ten years, Fostoria made pressed ware, but early in the 20th century Fostoria realized the importance of developing fine quality blown stemware.

In 1924 the company was one of the first to start a program of national advertising, and the first to produce complete dinner services in crystal. Besides their regular line of blown, etched and pressed patterns they did custom work such as providing glass with government seals for officials in Washington. All the presidents from Eisenhower through Reagan ordered glassware from them. At one time Fostoria was the largest maker of handmade glassware in the United States, employing nearly 1000 people. The AMERICAN pattern, introduced in 1915, is still being produced by Lancaster Colony (who bought the Fostoria company in 1983), making it the most successful pattern in the history of glass making. Fostoria's business peaked in 1950 when they made over 8 million pieces of glass.

In 1986, after struggling with an outmoded plant and foreign competition, Lancaster Colony was forced to close the Fostoria Company, ending nearly 100 years of glass making.

International Association of R.S. Prussia Collectors, Inc.

Association History

The first gathering of R.S. Prussia Collectors was held in Indianapolis, Indiana, in 1985. Bob and Mary McCaslin put an ad in the Antique Trader asking collectors interested in forming a club to join them in Indy for a weekend convention. Twenty families were represented from 12 states. Temporary officers were elected until 1986, when the International Association of R.S. Prussia Collectors formed.

The families of the International Association of R.S. Prussia Collectors invite you to join our organization. Members are confident that you will enjoy the friendly atmosphere of the organization and our conventions. Members truly enjoy the beauty and rarity of the R.S. Prussia porcelain. The various designs, colors, and scenes make the collecting of R.S. Prussia a lifelong pasttime. There are members throughout the United States, Canada, and New Zealand who share the enjoyment of collecting this fine porcelain and frequently write and visit each other to keep in touch with the Prussia families.

The preamble of the organization includes the following statement, "Those of us who are collectors, dealers, historians, and appreciators of the type of porcelain known as R.S. Prussia and related china, in order to interest and educate others in collecting of same, to increase and promote friendship, to recruit new members into the organization, to increase the knowledge through research, and to allow the opportunity to view the rare and beautiful pieces, establish this organization to be known as the International Association of R.S. Prussia Collectors, Inc." Join Today - Visit www.rsprussia.com

Antiques & Appraising School Launches "New" e-Course

Article by Charles Green (Ashford Institute of Antiques)

The Ashford Institute of Antiques (AIA), a professional-level distance learning program on antiques, collectibles and appraising, recently rolled out its first ever online "e-Course," at an industry trade gathering earlier this month, in anticipation of the school's 50th anniversary to be held in New York later this year.

Described by school spokesperson Shelly Dumont, as a watershed moment for the Institute, Dumont said the school's first foray into e-learning was consistent with Ashford's innovative and ground-breaking teaching techniques employed over the last 50 years. "When we offer something new, we like to take the time to make sure it's done right," said Dumont at a Q & A session following the announcement.

When asked about the differences in curriculum between textbooks and the new e-Course format of the program, Dumont said there was literally no comparison. "In terms of sheer volume, it's almost double the size of the printed version, and comes loaded with interactive videos, multimedia-activities, web-based resource links, and a host of other features we simply can't add into the texts." Dumont went on to say that the e-Course had been in development for almost two years by the school's IT team, before any release dates were even considered.

Industry insiders attending the trade gathering were granted temporary passcodes to the e-Course, and were given full access to the programs options and features at a demonstration held during the event. Director of the school, Charles Green presided over the presentation, and noted during the unveiling, that the program had undergone almost a year of beta-testing by international students prior to its intended release in North America.

A statement issued from the school's Admissions Officer, Tony Drew seemed to indicate a "full" release date for the new e-Course to be some time in mid-July. "We don't want to rush it, but we're really pleased with the response so far," said Drew, "We think the e-Course is really going to be a game-changer when it comes to setting the bar for future antiques and appraising education." The press release went on to say that while the textbooks for the Ashford program were still available, they would likely be phased out in the next five to ten years.

Unequivocal Vintage 1856 Glassware

by Maynard E. Steiner

The steamboat Arabia departed St. Louis, Missouri, August 30, 1856, "headed for all points on the Missouri River between St. Joseph, Missouri, and Sioux City, Iowa", the Missouri Republican reported, with a cargo of new merchandise consigned to merchants along the river. Nine days later on September 5th however, after unloading freight at Westport Landing near the City of Kansas (present-day Kansas City), a village of 3,000 at best, disaster lay 10 miles up river, near Parkville, Missouri.

The Arabia struck a submerged tree trunk and "sank in the short space of ten minutes in some twelve feet of water," according to one newspaper story. The tree reportedly ripped through the steamboat's oak hull, penetrating some 10 feet and causing water to flood the main deck. While all 130 passengers reached shore safely, the Arabia and its 200 tons of new merchandise settled into the sandy bottom of the Missouri River. By evening, "all that could be seen of our boat was the top of the pilot house," a passenger recalled.

During the years since the Arabia's fatal voyage, the Missouri River shifted its course northeast, which left the steamboat buried on farmland. In November of 1988, some 130 years later, a small group of treasure hunters led by the Hawley family located the Arabia in a farmer's cornfield. Excavators uncovered the Arabia at a depth of 27 feet and salvaged the vintage 1856 cargo. Greg Hawley would later write, "I was perched on the edge of history, and what a glorious sight it was." Among quantities of housewares, clothing, footwear, bottled fruits, perfume, fabrics, tools, and building supplies, the treasure hunters found blown and pressed glassware in pristine condition.

Scroll Flask

Eight dozen scroll flasks in hues of blue and green were salvaged from the cargo compartments of the Arabia. The flasks (Figure 1), which were popular during the period 1830 -1850, are attributed primarily to mid-western glasshouses, as all of the marked ones are from that area. Some 75 variations of the curvy shape and scroll-work-in-relief pattern have been recorded and classified (McKearin and Wilson, p. 423).

Their original use is unknown, though whisky flask seems most likely. Unaffected by varying temperatures or rough transport, whisky was freely consumed on the frontier. Typically, whisky was shipped in bulk containers and bottled locally. Perhaps the Arabia's scroll flasks were destined for that purpose.

Whale Oil Lamps

Excavators salvaged both mold-blown and pressed whale oil lamps. The mold-blown lamp with the engaging umbrella-shaped font (Figure 2), is yet to be identified. The font consists of an umbrella-shaped dome of 16 panels over a circular disk applied directly to stem and base.

The trio of lamps with whale oil burners (Figure 3) exemplify home lighting technology on the eve of the kerosene era. The so-called Elongated Star lamp at the right has a mold-blown font joined directly to a pressed stem and base. While attribution of the lamp remains uncertain, just such a technique was developed and patented in 1844 by Patrick Slane and John Golding of the American Glass Company. The technique employed "a mechanical device supporting a metal mold in which a lamp font was blown, centered on, and attached to a previously pressed glass base" (Kaiser, The Acorn, p. 40). Each of the two pressed lamps is joined with a wafer to its stem.

The dating and design of the Sharp Diamond pattern derive from a New England Glass Company catalog, ca. 1868-69. The Arabia's Sharp Diamond lamp (Figure 3) and bowl (see Figure 9), however, move the pattern date back a dozen years to 1856 and, in turn, provide an important visual link to "130 pieces pressed sharp diamond pattern glassware" exhibited by New England Glass at the 1853 Crystal Palace Exhibition in New York City (Goodrich, Science and Mechanism, p. 220). The pattern is not illustrated in Exhibition reports.

The lamp with the onion-shaped font (Figure 4) and applied and tooled stem and foot is in a shape usually attributed to the 1860s but due to its presence here, seen to be earlier. Pressed pattern whale oil stand lamps such as those found on the Arabia were easily converted to kerosene lamps, and many probably were converted, as the cleaner and cheaper fuel became available. The collar size was the same as a kerosene burner (Thuro, Oil Lamps, p. 78).

Though dictionaries declare a glass container with spout and handle a "jug," M'Kee & Brother and J. B. Lyon and Co. named glass molasses containers with metallic spouts and tops "cans" in their respective illustrated catalogs (1859-1860 and 1861). The metallic tops or marketing concerns may have called for a special classification. The tops were available in either tin or britannia at a higher price.

The molded pattern on the molasses can in (Figure 5) remains unidentified. Perhaps a reader can assist. Meanwhile, an apt suggestion coming from Frank Robertson, researcher and author, is a Colonial variant. The pressed Colonial pattern, which Ruth Webb Lee reportedly considered one of the earlier pressed patterns, features a punty in the upper portion of the panel.

The molded pattern on the molasses can in (Figure 6) is Star and Punty, better known as a pressed pattern found on bottles and spoon holders and not identified as to maker. The syrup jug or cruet in (Figure 7) has mold-blown ribs, a style of decoration popular throughout the 19th century and not attributable to any factory.

Tablewares

The pressed tumbler with applied handle in (Figure 8) is known also as a handled whiskey or mug. Though the contemporary pattern name was Palace, collectors continue to revert to its descriptive alias, Waffle and Thumbprint. This Palace pattern is illustrated in the Lyon and Company 1861 catalog, as well as in the New England Glass Company catalog of 1868-69 and an advertisement of Curling, Robertson & Sons of Pittsburgh shown in Lowell Innes's Pittsburgh Glass. American Glass Company invoices issued as early as September, 1854, reference "2 Palace bowls" (Kaiser, p. 67).

The footed bowl in (Figure 9) is pressed in the New England Glass Company's Sharp Diamond pattern discussed previously, while the spoon holder in the same picture is in the pattern shown as Comet in the M'Kee & Brother 1860 catalog. Molds for the pattern were found at Sandwich according to Ruth Webb Lee and the Cape Cod Glass Company advertised a Comet pattern in about 1863.

Though classified as cologne bottle, fancy shaped bottles such as the Arabia bottle in Figure 10 were used for numerous cosmetic liquids.

The perfume shipped aboard the Arabia included French perfume, according to analysis by International Flavors and Fragrances of New York City. However, an American perfumer may have prepared the cosmetic for market using domestic bottles. American manufacture of perfume and cologne bottles is recorded as early as 1818. Attribution of the Arabia bottle is undetermined. (McKearin and Wilson, p. 394).

A quantity of small glass panels of the size and contour illustrated in (Figure 11) were found in a box together with ink wells. All who have seen and discussed the objects are puzzled, David Hawley reports. The contour of the panels seems to rule out laboratory slides.

The unequivocal date in history which appends to the Arabia's glassware is indeed significant. Due to a general lack of factory or related other records, glass historians and collectors are seldom able to arrive at exact dating. The Arabia's pressed pattern artifacts, in particular, may well, over time, continue to link to earlier periods of American glassmaking.

Author's note:

The cargo recovered from the steamboat Arabia is housed and exhibited in The Arabia Steamboat Museum which opened November, 1991. The museum is located in Kansas City at historic City Market, which was established in 1857 adjacent to Westport Landing, the Arabia's final port-of-call.

Door Antique Show Becomes Door County Antique & Vintage Marketplace In Fish Creek, Wisconsin

Article & Photos by Larry Kaczmarek

Those of us who live in Door County or who frequently visit, cherish the county's old-fashioned charm, nostalgic atmosphere and artistic character. It's a place of traditions. Started in 1974, the Door County Antique Show has been an annual summer tradition for more than forty years!

The newly named Door County Antique and Vintage Marketplace will be held inside the air conditioned gym at Gibraltar High School on Highway 42 in Fish Creek Thursday through Saturday, July 26, 27 & 28th from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Admission is $6. Children under 12 are free. Ample free parking is available.

The Antique and Vintage Marketplace is sponsored by The Sister Bay Lions Club who will use the proceeds to support the Leader Dogs program. Members of the Club will be at the show to talk about the benefits of the program and other activities of the Lions.

Now under new management, the forty-third yearly event will not only include the beautiful and rare 'real antiques', which has made the antique show so successful in the past, but will add some enhancements including the additions of original artwork, sought-after collectibles and vintage décor from the late 19th Century to the middle of the 20th Century.

"Today's shoppers are very different than the 'antiquers' of the 1980s or 1990s," stated Larry Kaczmarek, the new promoter of the show. "Today's shoppers are more discriminate. Some aren't into collecting 'stuff' to sit on shelves or behind glass cases. Instead, they are interested in creating a unique, eclectic and personalized home décor to live in, electing to "retro-fit" antiques to provide a practical re-purpose in their homes, their cottages and as gifts.

"Whether you are a traditional antique collector or someone who just appreciates the way antiques help to create a unique and warm environment for living and entertaining, you'll enjoy the opportunity to shop from 34 exceptional vendors."

Dealers at this year's show will include purveyors of art, antiques, sports and movie memorabilia and vintage collectibles from Victorian to Arts & Crafts to Mid-Century Modern. Furniture, jewelry, pottery, picture frames, ephemera, lighting, framed art, garden display pieces, textiles, Indian relics, advertising toys, sporting goods, lithographs and so much more will all be available for purchase.

Also featured this year, is Mary Lou's Crystal and China Repair. Bob and Mary Lou Gates will be on-hand to repair broken crystal, china and pottery while you shop.

For more information about the show, call 920.993.9817 or 920.475.6508.

Wisconsin Auctioneers Association State Champion Auctioneer Contest

The Wisconsin Auctioneers Association in partnership with WI State Fair will be holding the WI State Champion Auctioneer Contest on Tuesday, August 8th with competition starting at 1:00 p.m. The competition will be held on the Main Stage in east end of the Coliseum of the WI State Fair Park.

The WI Champion Auctioneer is chosen each year at the WI State Fair and then goes on to represent WI at the National Auctioneers Association competition. There are 10 semi-finalist auctioneers vying for the title this year. These 10 contestants won that chance at being the best Top 10 at the WAA 2017 Convention in a preliminary contest.

Be a part of this public auction and join in the fun of bidding and buying at the AUCTION! Proceeds go to further WAA education, scholarships and the 4-H Foundation.

The Wisconsin Auctioneers Association is a non-profit trade association that exists for the purpose of promoting the growth and professionalism of the auction method of marketing and Auctioneering in the State of Wisconsin. For further information our website is www.wisconsinauctioneers.org or you may call 1 608 558 5014.

This antique show is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Eagle River. This show is the longest running antique show in the Northwood's and the ONLY antique show up North entirely benefiting a service club's community projects. All the proceeds from this show, including all the fees collected at the door, are used by the Rotary Club for their special community projects. The Club yearly sponsors two $1000 scholarships for local graduating seniors, sends 2 girls annually to Badger Girls State, supports the local Cranberry Fest, Klondike Days and sponsors a "Warm the Children" winter project. The Rotary also supports an ongoing Youth Exchange Program and holds a wine tasting event as another fund raiser in addition to the Antique Show and Sale.

Exhibitors for the show are professional antiques dealers from the Northern Wisconsin Antique Dealers Association along with select guest dealers. The Rotary Club and NWADA work very hard every year to provide a unique and quality antiques show that has become a successful, anticipated summer event. Top quality antique dealers from Wisconsin will be bringing their best antiques.....including many items they have saved special just for this show.

An excellent selection of antique furniture in a wide variety of woods and styles will be available. You can also expect to find fine antique and vintage costume jewelry; sterling silver flatware and hollowware; brass and copper; ironstone; art pottery; elegant, depression & kitchen glassware; kitchen collectibles; decorative lodge-look items; sports items; decoys; art; children's toys & collectibles; vintage textiles; art glass; Military collectibles; and small primitives and country pieces at this show. There is something for everyone in every price range!

Also we are happy to announce that Mary Lou's Crystal Repair will again be joining us this year! You can bring your damaged crystal, china, porcelain or pottery with you to the show and have it repaired while you shop.

Mark your calendar now! Come out and help us celebrate our 57th year.....the Rotary Club is a wonderful community organization and is deserving of our support and appreciation! A lot of good things happen in Eagle River every year thanks to this fine organization, but none of this can happen without your public support.

The show also has free parking. Food and a full bar will be available for purchase from the Derby. For questions or additional information call (920)533-8731.

Paul & Kathleen Martin of Early Times Antiques will be bringing this 1960/1970 original A & W counter and 7 stools, asking $495.

Pieces Of Our Past, Sue & Jeff Pankratz will be bringing country store, industrial & more. Ph: 715-663-1101

Ginger Wierman from Vintagerie will be bringing this original signed Van Hove gouache for a vintage National Forest Service poster $295 & three amberina Blenko incl: 16.5" x 7.5" crimped footed swung compote $295, 13" decanter with applied ribbon $245 & Joel Myers brain vase $95. Ph: 715-829-4545
