Article & photos by Timothy Wilson

This past September 23rd and 24th birthed a new era for the antique industry. After acquiring the long running Indy Ad Show, Northstar Collective took the event to the next level by adding two new shows to the lot, a gas & oil and antique market. An Amazing Weekend for Collectors - The Boone County Treasure Hunt in Lebanon, Indiana

Article & Photos by Timothy Wilson

Having two other venues to compliment the crown jewel of antique advertising, the "Indy Ad Show", the Treasure Hunt has become the bi-annual event you will not want to miss. Taking a risk and moving the 45-year-old Indy Ad Show into Lebanon Indiana, a short drive northwest of Indianapolis, the new owners melded dealers from the past, present and future making it the largest show it had seen in years. Furthermore, the show's attendance more than doubled in size from previous years.

Part of the event included the Boone County Gas & Oil Show, which saw a lot of attention from motorheads and oil-fanatics. Thousands of gas station signs were displayed in the fields and pavilions on the fairgrounds, alongside oil tins, motor memorabilia, and motor-themed store displays spread throughout the show. Starting and ending with plenty of sunshine, dealers saw a good turnout of buyers braving temperatures of over 100 degrees Fahrenheit. A temperature that had not been recorded since the late 1800s for the month of September.

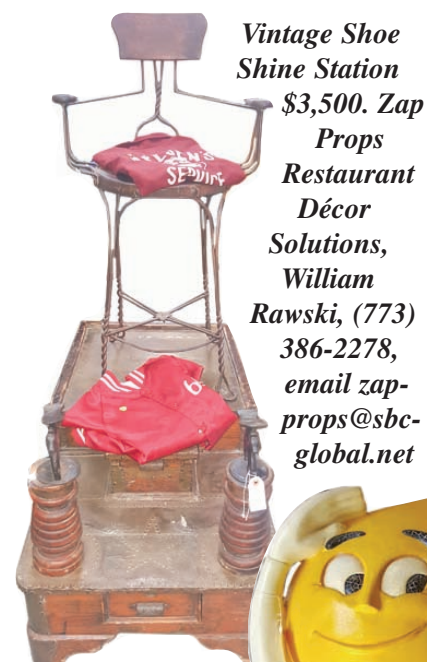

Rounding out the event was the Boone County Antique Market. In it, contained everything you could imagine at an antique show. Toys ranging from the early years of cast iron to Japanese battery-operated tin toys were found. Furniture from the Primitive and Victorian eras to the Modernistic/Futuristic Mid-Century were also discovered along with fine glassware, jewelry, repurposed items and more. This addition made it a well-rounded shopping experience for the whole family and diverse collector.

In total, the festivities included approximately 250 top-notch dealers from far and wide filling 6 buildings and pavilions along with outdoor vending to top it off. There was also a variety of great food vendors available to give you the energy to shop till you dropped. And if that wasn't enough, there was also an auction of 300 exemplary lots of merchandise that took place by 326 Auctions in another building on the fairgrounds on Saturday evening.

The next event will be held on May 5th and 6th. For more information go to www.boonecountytreasurehunt.com or www.indyadshow.com or call 906-250-1618.

ANTIQUQUE SPORTING & ADVERTISING SHOW

Set For February 2nd & 3rd

Article by Nona Amour Wilson (Northstar Collective)

Looking for a unique experience for the family to enjoy? Searching to find that special item to invest in? Perhaps you're hunting down that one item that is missing from your elite collection. Look no further than Northstar Collective's 16th Annual Antique Sporting and Advertising Show, located at the Sunnyview Expo Center in Oshkosh Wisconsin.

Upon entering the show, you will encounter a variety of quality dealers with their fine merchandise. From animal mounts to hunting knives, from antique advertising to old general store displays, we've got it all for your convenience to find the perfect item for your collection. With lures, decoys, traps, cabin décor, furniture, Native American artifacts, early to mid-century toys, and more, we provide an exquisite opportunity for you to find what you want for your man cave or she-shed.

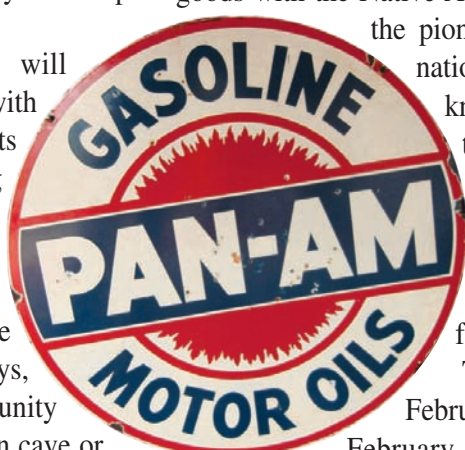

Items range from ten dollars to thousands of dollars; whether you're a beginner in the collecting world, or an experienced veteran; you'll find this show to be refreshing from the typical routine.

We aim to reflect a mere fraction of America's fine history. From the time of the frontiersman; trading their goods with the Native Americans for furs and pelts; to the pioneers of industry; moving our nation further to civilization as we know it today. Both parts in history we strive to bring forth to the show, and revive for all who attend to enjoy so it turns into more than another event, but an experience the entire family will enjoy.

The show will be held February 2nd, 10 am-6 pm, and February 3rd, 9 am-3 pm at the Sunnyview Expo Center in Oshkosh Wisconsin. It is located just off HWY 41, in the heart of the Fox Valley, and a short drive from Milwaukee, Chicago, Madison, or Green Bay. Admission is $7 a person. People 15 years old and younger have free admission. We hope to see you there.

For more information please visit our website at www.antiquesportingandadvertisingshow.com or contact Northstar Collective at P.O. Box 530, Park Falls, WI 54552, or by phone (906) 250-1618, or by e-mail contact@antiquesportingandadvertisingshow.com.

"The Marketing of Tobacco" A Special Exhibit At The Show

Folks familiar with the semi-annual shows produced by the Wisconsin Antiques Dealers Association, aka WADA, are familiar with Lee Bernard Antiques, Jackson, Wisconsin. In recent years Lee, along with his wife Roxanne, have exhibited in Booth 3 at the WADA shows, but this February Lee will ALSO exhibit his tobacco advertising collection in WADA's Special Exhibit Booth just around the corner from the show's entrance. Joining Lee, long-time collector Henry Hecker who will also share very special examples of tobacco advertising from his own collection.

"The Marketing of Tobacco" is a free exhibit for those who attend the 44th Winter Wisconsin Antiques Dealers Association Show & Sale at the Waukesha County Expo Center in suburban Milwaukee. Come see the rarity, quality and variety of objects assembled by these top collectors of "Tobacciana". Henry Hecker and Lee Bernard will be on hand both days to answer questions and to share their knowledge of this fascinating field.

Tobacco Advertising 101:

Native Americans introduced tobacco to the first European settlers in the early 1600's. Traders returned to Europe with tobacco plants from the Americas and, thus, the craving for a new commodity was born!

Henry provided some background on the earliest tobacco advertising. "Paper and wood were undoubtedly used several hundred years ago to advertise tobacco. While it is likely simple ads in newspapers and postings of broadsides began long before the mid-nineteenth century, the real explosion in graphics marketing occurred in the last quarter of the 1800's. With the advent of sophisticated lithography on both tin and card stock, manufacturers of tobacco products employed every conceivable image and narrative in advertising and packaging. Images of attractive women were the most commonly used to gain the attention of a predominantly male customer base. Often the women were displayed in, what was considered at that time, a very risqué manner. But cigar box labels covered the gambit: politicians and war heroes, sports figures and sportsmen, race horses, actors and actresses, fanciful depictions from literature and mythology, and holidays (especially Christmas and New Years). Native Americans and African Americans were commonly depicted often in less-than-complimentary ways that are today considered politically incorrect, if not downright racially discriminating. Inducement to use the product was, therefore, by association with vividly-depicted references of sex appeal, heroism, outdoors life, sports talent, literary knowledge, etc., all designed to appeal to the male gender.

This colorful Mi Lola humidor was suitable to become a permanent fixture in a home. An attractive container refilled, time after time, keeps the brand name in front of the smoker.

Lee began collecting tobacciana a scant five years ago, illustrating there's plenty of fine examples available. About his first acquisition he says, "I bought a colorful tobacco tin, Buckingham Cut Plug, with the intention of selling it; but I really liked it, so I kept it. That was the start of my collection of cigar & other tobacco related items. The great graphics on the old tins & boxes appeals to me & the hunt for items to add to my collection is fun & interesting." Lee's favorite piece is a colorful Possum cigar tin. "Who would want to smoke a cigar out of a tin with an opossum on it?" Lee asks!

Henry's been collecting cigar boxes for about 25 years, focusing mostly on Wisconsin cigar makers but also boxes with great graphics. Henry says, "My first purchase was a box from the Henry Castenholz saloon in Milwaukee, probably from his sample room. Castenholz also bottled beer for a time; the reason I acquired the box as a brewery 'go-with'. This was way before I purposely started collecting cigar boxes. Ironically I bought the box from Lee Bernard!" Henry's favorite piece is a small Milwaukee Stock Yards Christmas box with Santa on it; he's never seen another, the survival rate of such boxes is so low.

Words of wisdom? Henry notes the field has gained popularity in the last 10 years and good boxes are commanding strong prices, becoming hard to find. Henry recommends, "Buy what you like and you can always upgrade later. Base your purchases, first and foremost, on good graphics and condition. Pick a theme, otherwise your collection can become unwieldy and consume too much space." Lee adds, "Buy the best you can afford - it's better to buy one $20 tin than four $5 tins. Educate yourself on the subject by attending antiques shows, talking with knowledgeable dealers, and studying books on the subject so you get a feel for what is available."

EXPECT THE UNUSUAL!

Henry and Lee will both be on hand to discuss antique tobacco advertising collecting. In addition, wander the show's three large rooms featuring everything from vintage holiday items to jewelry, to antique cupboards offered by 55 of the Midwest's top dealers from 9 states. The Waukesha County Expo Center's Forum Building, 1000 Northview Road, Waukesha, WI 53188, is the home of this semi-annual event. Show hours are Friday, 10-8 and Saturday, 10-5. In addition to the good food customers have come to expect, a traditional Wisconsin Fish Fry will be served late Friday afternoon and evening so bring your appetite!

Also at the show, antiques (more than 100 years old) and vintage (50-99 years old) items will be collected by the Friends of the Wisconsin Historical Society for their biennial "30th Star Benefit Antiques Auction". Tax deductible receipts will be provided to all donors. The Wisconsin Antiques Dealers Association is proud to serve as the founding & continuing sponsor of this event since 2008 and has donated the booth for collection of objects for the fund-raising auction.

The Wisconsin Antiques Dealers Association is a non-profit organization that produces two antiques shows annually. Your admission of $7.00 funds college scholarships as well as grants to Wisconsin historic and heritage groups. A $1.00 discount coupon for admission to the Antiques Show is available with any ad or at: www.WisconsinAntiquesDealers.com/ Free parking. ATM on premises.
