Bearrows Real Estate & Auction Sells Northern Illinois Home & Lifetime Collection

Article & photos by Brian Maloney

I couldn't imagine a better way to spend a day. A beautiful summer morning drive through northern Illinois farm country - on the way to an estate auction filled with treasures from antique clocks and furniture to some choice period jukeboxes. That's how I spent August 10th, date of a great Bearrows Real Estate & Auction Company sale. A good-sized crowd turned out for the auction, held to disperse the lifetime accumulation of Betty Linnemeier. There was something for everyone there - with some great buys and a few surprises thrown in too.

The estate's 1960s ranch-style home needed a little TLC, and sold for a solid $89,000.

The sale's top-lot: this 1940s Wurlitzer jukebox that needed considerable restoration but sold for a surprising $2,200.

The day's furniture winner was this curved-glass oak china cabinet that sold for $600.

There were two original-condition vintage Wurlitzer jukeboxes in the sale, with this 1930s version with Simplex Multi-Selector bringing $1,800.

It took an $800 bid to win this Pace Jak Pot ten-cent slot machine in good original condition.

Note from a Missouri advertiser:

Thanks again for all you do. We know that the AAAN is a well read and well respected paper from all the feedback (and customers) we get from the ads you do for us.

Thanks again

School has started for my kids, what an exciting first day. No one went to the wrong classes. Brandon said teachers kept entering the room's asking for names of students. I guess there were a lot of lost kids from classes. The girls had no problems, except starvation. Kenzy's lunch is at 10:30 and she is unable to eat in her classes, so she will have to figure out a walking or should I say hurried snack. Tia was to nervous to sit and eat lunch. I thought registration took long, the paper work I had to read and sign for their high school courses took me at least an hour or more. We have even more school supplies to go and get. I better start stocking up for college supplies.

Brandon, Tia & Mekenzy went on their yearly visit to the Upper Michigan State Fair with Grandma & Grandpa. As always, it does not disappoint, Brandon can always find or make a ride exciting. I think he enjoyed it much more this year than the girls.

Vintage Jukeboxes Highlight August 10th Bearrows Auction in Rochelle, Illinois

Article & Photos by Brian Maloney

I bet there aren't too many Illinois auction enthusiasts who haven't been to at least a few of auctioneer John Bearrows' sales in his thirty-plus year history. His firm, Bearrows Real Estate & Auction Company, specializes in farm, estate, and antiques auctions, and is based in the quaint town of Rochelle, Illinois. It's better known as "Hub City" due to the convergence of several highways and railroad lines running right through town. Among them: the Lincoln Highway, the nation's only coast-to-coast highway at the time of its construction.

It's also one of the popular train-watching spots in the Midwest, with an amazing 80 to 120 trains passing through town every day. They even built a special park with elevated viewing platforms, Rochelle Railroad Park, to accommodate the crowds that come from all fifty states and beyond to see them whiz by.

The auction itself took place onsite at the Linnemeier home in Rochelle. And spread out on the lawn was a surprising assortment of collectibles - including large groups of everything from Occupied Japan figurines to Fiesta ware to clocks, furniture, jewelry, and more. The 1960s ranch-style home was unsurprisingly the top-lot of the day at $89,000, but the two original-condition jukeboxes did well too, bringing $2,200 and $1,800.

Horologists like myself came for a look at the dozen-or-so antique clocks. The winner among them was a classic Ingraham oak calendar regulator that brought $240; with a German walnut wall clock selling for $150, and an 8-day American column clock fetching $190. Another mechanical marvel of note: a mahogany-cased Victrola VV-IX floor phonograph in good original condition that was a good buy at $160. Other auction highlights ranged from a Pace Jak Pot ten-cent slot machine ($800), to a nicely restored curved glass oak china cabinet that brought a solid $600.

Auctioneers for the sale were John Bearrows and 2011 Illinois State Champion Auctioneer Josh Hickey. Bearrows Real Estate & Auction Company has been serving northern Illinois' auction needs since 1991, conducting sales of all kinds. They're also Rochelle's Re/Max Real Estate agency - Hub City Re/Max. They can be contacted by phone at 815-739-9150, or through their website www.bearrows.com. Be sure to sign up for their email reminder list while you're there. And as always, keep an eye out for all of their upcoming auctions in the Auction Action Antique News!

"As-is" vintage oak kitchen cabinet - $175

These mahogany music & record cabinets were great buys, selling for $55 and $35.

This mahogany-cased Victrola VV-IX phonograph was in nice shape, and sold for $160.

A group of mixed cats & dogs cast iron doorstops fetched up to $105 apiece.

Winner among the wall art: this Madonna lithograph in a fancy frame that sold for $105.

Lots of clocks crossed the block, from mantel clocks from under $50 to this 8-day "triple-decker" that brought $190.

A $155 bidder won this group of vintage political buttons from Coolidge to Kennedy.

Top-lot among the Red Wing stoneware: this complete 2 gallon churn that sold for $225.

German regulator in mahogany case - $95.

Detecto balance scale, complete with weights - $160.

A low-miles Ford Contour sedan sold for a respectable $3,100.

Lighting ranged from this Adlake/Great Trunk Western Railroad lantern ($100) to this floral parlor lamp that made $40.

Fashion jewelry was a draw for many, with hundreds of pieces from vintage to modern.

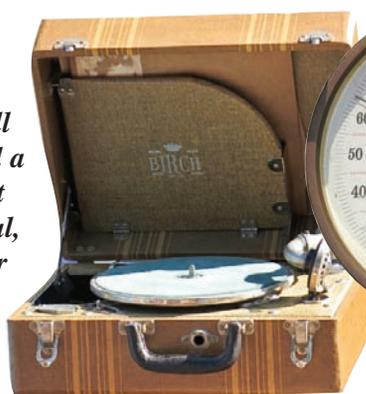

Decoratives included hundreds of Occupied Japan figurines sold as groups, plus this lot of cranberry glass epergne parts that brought $105.

This fancy German wall clock sported a silvered Art Nouveau dial, and sold for $150.

An oak wall telephone made $210, an Ansonia visible-escapement mantel clock $50.

Unusual finds included this Birch "picnic" phonograph ($40) and R. J. Coach Secret Service advertising thermometer - $55.

Auctioneer John Bearrows runs Bearrows Real Estate & Auction Company - ably assisted by 2011 Illinois Auctioneer of the Year Josh Hickey.

A $240 bid took this Ingraham calendar regulator.

Vintage mahogany china cabinet - $85.

Victorian walnut bargains included this marble-top parlor table ($25), Eastlake dresser ($65), and three-drawer washstand that also made $65.

Auctioneer Josh Hickey spots bids on a round oak dining table - selling for a bargain $60.

This Austrian porcelain chocolate service (with portrait vase thrown in) was a good buy at $50.

F & F Plastics syrups and salt & peppers - $50.

A huge collection of "old" Fiesta ware found ready buyers, with this yellow casserole bringing $70, this orange pitcher $45.

Barrett M82A1 50 cal. BMG Military Sniper Rifle Brings $9,625 at Kramer Summer Gun Auction

Article & Photos by Kramer Auction Service, LLC

Barrett M82A1 50 cal $9,625.

A Barrett M82A1 50cal BMG Semi auto rifle, the same as used by our military snipers was the top selling & no doubt the heaviest lot of the day. In fine lightly used condition it demanded $9,625 before finding a new home. The next lot was the surprise of the day at $3,300, it consisted of a grouping of WWI Naval Aviator military decorations & photos. Early Aviation items are always of interest, add the identification & provenance & it was the right mix for a very desirable item. A fine Civil War Maynard Carbine was strong at $2,640. Weatherby rifles are always good property, especially when they are German manufactured & in rare calibers. A Mark V Varmintmaster in 224 WBY Mag in minty condition demanded $2,530 & a Mark V in Naval Aviator Grouping $3,300.

240 WBY mag was right behind it at $2,420.

LC Smith doubles are popular within the double gun enthusiast, an a LC Smith

KelTec RFB Bullpup Rifle $2,090.

Skeet Special which was a good restoration candidate was still in demand at the sum of $2,530. Another double followed that one, this time a rifle. A Sabatti 45-70 cal Double barreled Rifle was a good buy at $2,310. The last of the most interested top lots went to a rare modern Kel Tec RFB 308 cal Bullpup rifle.

Although it is a modern production gun, you may have to wait over a 1yr. from the factory for a new one; these buyers did not want to wait with a price of $2,090. Not in the top 25 but still well represented was a Winchester Sewing machine, this rarity stitch right up to $1,100 & was the top of the Winchester collectibles on this auction.

Kramer's Fall Gun Auction is set for Sat., October 5th, plan to see 400 guns & some large lots of ammo & reloading supplies. Expect a big line up of Winchester Guns & collectibles from the 2nd half of the Marcus Bremmer Estate. US military guns include WWII Sniper Rifles, M1 Garand's, Carbines & correct 1903 Rifles. Modern Hunting rifles & handguns will be well represented along with optics & ammunition. To see more on this sale or past results from the summer auction you can visit www.kramersales.com or call & talk direct with Curt Kramer at (608) 326-8108.

Sabatti Dbl. Bbl. Rifle $2,310.

Weatherby Mark V Varmintmaster in 224 WBY Mag $2,530.

Virginia Carpentier Estate on the Auction Block!

The late Virginia Carpentier passed away in 2013 at the age of 88 after living a very exciting life as a mother, wife, United Nation's employee, talented poet, 1940's Mademoiselle magazine model, antique dealer and collector, and an artist. She was also very adventuress as a solo pilot in her late teens...

In her earlier days Virginia operated 'Ginny's Antiques' in DePere, WI and was an elite antique dealer for over 40 years!

She was a beautiful and refined woman who had a great eye for all things artistic. Mademoiselle Magazine recognized this in the 1940's and she posed in several issues of their magazine while modeling in New York.

Virginia LOVED antiques and we've heard several stories about her being more of a 'collector' than a 'seller.' She would place sky-high prices on the things that she loved the most and then if someone expressed an interest in buying would quickly put a "NSF" tag on that piece (Not For Sale?)!

She closed 'Ginny's Antiques' many years ago and brought all of her merchandise to her home in Allouez, where she could continue to enjoy her treasures!

Now that she has passed, her children have commissioned Superior Auction & Appraisal to sell her estate to the bare walls! And 'selling it to the bare walls' will take multiple auctions!!

The first of several auctions for Virginia was held at the Beja Shrine Hall in Green Bay on August 24th. It was well attended and prices were strong, with the exception of some realized prices on a few of the fantastic furniture pieces. After recently attending the National Auctioneer's Association Conference & Show, we realize that antique furniture prices across the nation are soft, BUT the Carpentier Estate has some exceptional pieces that we hope buyers will appreciate in future auctions!

Auction Number 2 is scheduled for Saturday, September 21st in Green Bay and will include an Arts & Crafts secretary, 1812 Sampler, advertising signs, stoneware, a large quantity of Art pottery, quality glass and more! This is a very strong antique auction with 'top-of-the-line' merchandise!!

The large stained glass windows include one rectangular and one cathedral shaped - both absolutely stunning pieces! Virginia also had a great fondness for Art Pottery so expect to see some pretty good pieces!

Auction number 3 will be held on Sunday, September 29th at the Pensaukee Town Hall, which is just 15 minutes North of Green Bay and will include a vast amount of desirable 'smalls' as well as some furniture pieces. Keep an eye on our website!!

When Gene and Nellie first attended their interview with the family they were very impressed and overwhelmed with the quality and quantity of merchandise, but also with the family members (they have been extremely cooperative and helpful).

Although Nellie and Gene's true love is in selling antiques, their company has focused recently on selling commercial, industrial, Internet and real estate auctions. BUT these are antiques that seldom see the public marketplace as typically family members keep the most desirable items - not so in this estate!

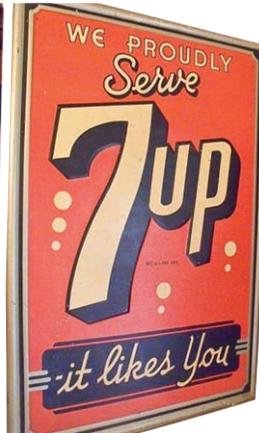

We have only posted a few of the Carpentier auction dates on our website but we are hoping to complete this project by years end. The three floors of Virginia's home don't look like they're getting any 'roomier' at this point, AND we still have 2 storage units to get to (one which has antiques which Virginia has stored for over 27 years)!

And then....there at least 1500 pieces of vintage jewelry that we've purposely avoided for the most part as we know that we would get too distracted from our main project!! Watch our website for more info on the jewelry...

If you haven't attended a Superior Auction Event, NOW is the time! Superior Auction has been in business for almost 20 years. Lead Auctioneer and owner Nellie Beland is dedicated to serving our clients and has obtained the CAI (Certified Auctioneer's Institute at Indiana University), CES (Certified Estate Specialist), and CAGA (Certified Appraiser's Guild of America) designations. She is also an active member of the National Auctioneer's Association, the Michigan Auctioneer's Association and the Wisconsin Auctioneer's Association where she served as the 2008 President.

PAUL BROWN, STAR OF DISCOVERY CHANNEL'S HIT SHOW AUCTION KINGS, IS AVAILABLE FOR APPEARANCES AT ANTIQUE SHOWS, FAIRS AND AUCTIONS

Paul Brown, star of TV's Auction Kings, is available for appearances at antique shows, fairs and auctions.

Brown has made about a half dozen appearances since airing of the show began 3 1/2 years ago.

(ATLANTA, Ga.) – Antique show and fair promoters looking to boost attendance at their next event might want to consider booking Paul Brown, the star of The Discovery Channel's hit TV show Auction Kings. Brown has made about a half-dozen appearances at such shows since Auction Kings first began airing in May of 2010, and he found the experiences to be exhilarating.

"I never thought of myself as a celebrity, but the show has elevated my profile and I was approached by some show promoters to appear and meet the public, have photos taken, give informal analysis and appraisal of items and just mix it up with folks in an industry that I love and they love, too," Brown said. "I'd like to do more of them. They were thoroughly enjoyable."

Brown, the owner of Gallery 63 in Atlanta, where Auction Kings is filmed, was little known outside the greater Atlanta area prior to the show. But no more. He's recognized now all the time, and not just in his home town. "The power of television is incredible," he said. "My business has tripled since Auction Kings came on the air. It's been a real roller coaster ride."

Even the average price per lot has increased – by a whopping 45 percent – since the show went on the air, simply because of Brown's star power and the intoxicating effect TV must have on bidders. In fact, Brown would be a good fit, too, for auction houses, just like his Gallery 63. Anyone would like to see a 45 percent spike in gross sales.

Brown's star power could easily translate into a successful show or auction for promoters seeking that something extra to draw crowds. Historically, events that feature industry experts, authors, appraisers, or film and TV stars have done better business than shows that didn't feature anyone of note. The booking fees are usually more than offset by a spike in admission revenues.

Brown's high-energy style and playful demeanor are the very qualities that would make him a hit with show-goers. They've been honed over the course of years, warming up crowds first at Red Baron (when he worked for his father, Bob Brown) and later on at Gallery 63 (which he started in 2005). He has an infectious smile and a slightly mischievous way that people like.

At least it has played well to viewing audiences since Auction Kings began its 3 1/2 year run. On its website, The Discovery Channel says the show "delves into the world of unique items – from vampire-killing kits to meteorites to jewel-encrusted pencils – and the emotional process of their acquisition and loss." It's made TV stars and celebrities out of Brown and his loyal staff.

But Brown is the undisputed star of the show. Remarkably, it's a gig that almost didn't happen. When Discovery first called him, to see if he'd be interested in the project, he thought it was a crank call. "People come at me all the time, with all kinds of pitches," he said. "I cut them short and told them I wasn't interested." Luckily for him, Discovery wasn't so easily spurned.

A week later, the network phoned again, this time convincing Brown they were serious about featuring him and Gallery 63 in a reality show. Auction Kings follows Brown and his staff as they interact with consignors and customers and explore the wondrous treasures that turn up at the gallery. It has been one of the more popular of the many antiques-related reality TV shows.

Paul Brown may have been born into the antiques business, but he didn't embrace it early on. He studied literature, earned a bachelor's degree in English and enrolled in graduate school, seemingly on a path to writing, teaching and academia. But as he matured, so did his appreciation of the family business, and in 1989 he went to work for his father at Red Baron's.

Because of his earlier studies, Brown was initially drawn to the academic component of the antiques business. He immersed himself in the catalogs of auction houses like Christie's and Sotheby's, learning the language of the industry. Armed with that, he was able to bring Red Baron's catalogs up to a higher standard. He also handled research, advertising and promotion.

Largely through his efforts, Red Baron's enjoyed enormous success throughout the 1990s and early 2000s. But in 2005, Brown got the itch to branch out on his own, which he did by taking over Gallery 63 in Sandy Springs, a suburb just north of Atlanta (and not too far from Red Baron's). Business was good, until The Discovery Channel came a-knocking. Then it exploded.

As Discovery described his operation, "Paul manages his feisty staff, eager buyers and rare items like a circus under the big top. The bidders and sellers come from all walks of life, looking to make money, buy a unique piece or simply enjoy the excitement of winning. When bidding starts, the gloves come off and it's every buyer for himself." In short – it's an auction.

Now, Paul Brown is offering his style, his wit, his wisdom and his star power to the show promoters and auction houses of America who want an established headliner for their next event. "I've been meeting and greeting the public and working with ground-level dealers for years," he said. "The only difference is, now I'm a celebrity, thanks to the huge success of Auction Kings."

Anyone interested in having Paul Brown appear at their upcoming auction, show or fair may contact him via e-mail at dogstaratl@gmail.com. ROOM TRADING

Many people miss some of the most informative and possibly most interesting aspects of a marble show. A few days prior to the actual show, marble collectors and presenters exhibit their marbles in their rooms. Many marbles are bought, sold and traded. You can really get to know marbles and collectors during this time. Rooms will be open most of Friday afternoon, evening and all day Saturday. Just walk up and down the halls and visit any room that is open, if you really want to know marbles. Attend Early, it is a good time to buy, sell, trade or just get to know the collectors.

Sunday Show Admission: $2.00 • Children 12/under Free
Dealer/Show tables $25 per table (All dealers rooms together)
