Strong Prices from Start-to-Finish at Sweeney Auction's "House of Clocks" Estate Auction

Article & photos by Brian Maloney

Waukon, Iowa's Sweeney Auction Service recently conducted a two-day sale for the "House of Clocks" Museum, a local attraction owned by Sweeney Auction's late founder Ray Sweeney. A big and enthusiastic crowd turned out for the June 28th & 29th auction, where around a thousand antique and vintage clocks crossed the block along with hundreds of other treasures from the family patriarch's vast collections. Top lot of the sale? A huge Black Forest-style jeweler's regulator that soared to $35,000!

Article & photos by Brian Maloney

A sunny and pleasant June 14th was the date for the second of this summer's Sunday at Sandwich Antiques Shows, now embarking on its third successful season. Held at the historic Sandwich, Illinois Fairgrounds an hour west of the Windy City, the event is a worthy successor to the famed Sandwich Antique Markets of years past. Veteran dealers Renie & Fred Mitchell, Chuck & Mary Springob, and Maureen & Jim Little run the enterprise, continuing the Sandwich Fairgrounds' antiques tradition into the future.

Furnishings at Hitman Antiques ranged from a marquetry-covered Italian desk ($1,200), to a funky Asian-themed vintage console bar, asking price only $275. 815-258-0759

My husband Todd & I are both originally from lower Michigan. Over 4th of July week, Todd's wonderful older sister Kim & her husband Dave spent a week here in New London, WI at the Wolf River Campground. As we wanted them to have a relaxing vacation, we did take them boating. Yes, they did tube with the kids & I can actually say, we all had fun. Mostly, we appreciated that her & Dave brought supplies to teach the kids how to make a Italian family tradition "canollis". As we don't get to go home often, we miss out on all the good family food. Now we can make them too!

Thank you Aunt Kim & Uncle Dave

Hundreds of Clocks and Much More at Two-Day Sweeney Auction in Waukon, Iowa

Article & photos by Brian Maloney

Well, one thing's for sure: Ray Sweeney liked clocks! Nearly fifty years ago, Ray bought out the huge "House of Clocks" collection from a fellow horologist in Spillville, Iowa and moved it to his nearby hometown of Waukon. He kept the House of Clocks name, and opened up his very own clock museum. Ray added greatly to the museum over the years, buying pretty much anything that interested him.

By the time he passed away more than twenty years ago, the popular roadside attraction housed everything from an early Sears & Roebuck Motor Buggy to a jukebox with mechanical band. Plus around a thousand clocks of all descriptions. He was also the founder of Waukon's Sweeney Auction Service, so I guess it was fitting that his collection was sold by Sweeney Auction, now run by some of his many children.

I always get a little excited as I travel to an antiques auction, never quite knowing what will turn up there. And the drive can be half the fun. That was true in spades as I headed toward Waukon in northeast Iowa, passing through Wisconsin's scenic Driftless Area before crossing the Mississippi River into the Hawkeye State.

I came for day-one of the sale, when most-everything but the clock collection crossed the block. A dozen wagon-loads of smaller items jostled for space in the huge building with hundreds of lots of furniture and country artifacts. Highlights ranged from a set of seven Rock Island Plows embossed steel signs bringing a total of $3,000 to a Petty's Hog Tonic stoneware jug that fetched $1,150.

The bidders moved into to House of Clocks Museum itself for day-two of the auction. That huge black Forest-style floor clock (with a twenty-seven pound mercury pendulum) was the big winner at $35,000. Several other clocks made well into five figures, including a classic Calumet Baking Powder advertising clock that brought $3,000. A few notable non-clock lots sold on day-two as well, including an early Sears & Roebuck Motor Buggy that rolled off for $8,000, and a funky AMI Jukebox that included a large add-on mechanical bandbox and sold for a surprising $9,750.

Some other prices:

- Rock Island Railroad steel stepstool - $575
- Small ornate cast iron balance scale - $450
- Group of vintage Lansing, Iowa photographs - $325
- Box lot of skeleton keys - $225
- Atwater Kent radio with horn speaker - $175
- Delaval Junior tabletop cream separator - $120

Auctioneers for the two-day sale were second-generation bid-callers Jeff and Jodi Sweeney. Sweeney Auction Service, based in Waukon, Iowa, has been serving the Hawkeye State's auction needs for half a century. They conduct auctions of all types - farm, real estate, business, and antiques - both onsite and at their dedicated indoor auction facility. They can be contacted by phone at 563-568-2464, or through their website www.sweeneyauctionservice.com. And as always, keep an eye out for all of Sweeney Auction Service's events in the Auction Action Antique News!

More than a dozen trunks crossed the block, including this dated-1854 example that made $950.

An early tricycle surprised at $450.

Equine-themed paper mache parlor table - $175.

This unrestored Coinola player piano was in nice shape, and sold for a solid $2,650.

Folk art "Mary Lee" riverboat wooden model - $700.

Toy sewing machine winner: this Lindstrom model that made $120.

A $1,000 bid took this popcorn machine steam engine.

Competition Roasted coffee display bin - $300.

It took a $330 bid to win this WWI Koenig German spike helmet.

Adlake Non-Sweating Railroad lamp - $325.

Square spool cabinets made up to $550 apiece.

A sea of antique firearms found ready buyers, with many examples fetching $500 or more.

Ornate National cash register - $850.

Choice of disc music boxes resulted in a $1,000 bid.

Chico's Spanish Peanuts store display jar - $100.

Iowa's Sweeney Auction Service conducted the huge sale, presided over by auctioneers Jodi and Jeff Sweeney.

Lampson cast iron automatic change-maker - $185.

Easy winner among the stoneware: this Petty's Hog Tonic jug that fetched $1,150.

Spark-gap cigar lighter - $190.

Top lot of the many cash registers? This unusual keyless St. Louis "cheese cutter" example that sold for $1,000!

Victorian hanging oil lamps made $250 and $175.

A wagon's worth of antique, mostly Civil War-era swords crossed the block, the best bringing $775.

This trio of Hartland Plastics baseball players included Babe Ruth, and sold for $195.

A lantern from a narrow gauge train sold for $500.

Winner of the spool cabinets: this round Merrick's Spool Cotton cabinet that made $775.

Auctioneer Jodi Sweeney looks on as a thirty-gallon Red Wing Crock sells for $400.

A stack of seven Rock Island Plows embossed steel signs made a total of $3,000!

A Sipe Mfg. hog oiler was a nice buy at $95.

A tale of two (local) wooden signs: the Waukon Jct. sign 1,250, the Lycurgus P.O. sign $525.

Jeweler's regulator with local advertising - $2,500.

1880s Waterbury eight-day time & strike regulator - $2,400.

I didn't even get a close look at this early mechanical pencil sharpener that soared to $800!

Clocks anyone? Day-two of the sale was devoted to just that: the amazing array of period clocks housed at the long-closed House of Clocks Museum in Waukon, Iowa.

Seth Thomas time-only regulator - $2,300.

Wall regulator with sweep second hand - $3,000.

Bidders had dozens of brass steam whistles to choose from, with some bringing in excess of $500 each.

Horse-drawn child's hearse - $2,900.

Auctioneer Jeff Sweeney sells the coffee mills choice, with the largest Enterprise mill bringing $750 despite damage.

Round saloon poker table, rough - $500.

This copper still came complete with local lore of its history, and sold for a whopping $1,800.

Set of seven cast metal carnival faces - $3,000.

A $3,400 bid took this late 19th century floor regulator clock.

A 36" copper kettle surprised at $850.

A pair of life-sized Skookum-style Native American figures fetched $1,450.

Centennial Bell Foundry (Milwaukee) 1891 bell - $500.

Right: A vintage Fawn Mfg. cigarette vending machine made $450.

Great Dealers, Great Deals, at Illinois' New Sunday at Sandwich Antiques Show

Article & photos by Brian Maloney

Sandwich, Illinois. Just hearing the name stirs the hearts of antique enthusiasts everywhere who remember the glory years of the Sandwich Antiques Market. Well, that original show may be just a memory now, but there's another one to take its place: the Sunday at Sandwich Antiques Show. Now in its third summer season, the indoor-outdoor antiques show is a worthy successor to its iconic namesake. Last season saw more than one-hundred quality antiques purveyors and nice crowds at each monthly event, and this June 2015 show saw good attendance for both vendors and shoppers alike.

I came out bright & early for the June Sunday at Sandwich Antiques Show, and the large parking lot was already filling up as I arrived. The modest $5 admission fee includes parking in one of the several lots at the edge of the Fairgrounds. It's among the most picturesque county fairgrounds around, with large trees providing welcome shade for the vendors and shoppers alike.

"For the Sunday at Sandwich Antiques Show, we wanted the focus to be on quality antiques and collectibles dealers," show co-promoter Maureen Little told me. "We already have a good group of core dealers spreading the word. Our goal is to make this event a profitable venue for our exhibitors and rewarding experience for the visiting public."

Of course, many of the dealers were from Land of Lincoln, but there were quite a few from the surrounding states as well. Hitman Antiques was one of the local dealers, bringing a wonderful selection of antique and vintage furnishings and decoratives of all sorts. A great mix awaited at Collectibles-n-Things too - from 19th century English transferware to American country collectibles.

Toys more your thing? Look no further than the aptly named Tonka Ty's, where shoppers found classic steel Tonka toys of course, plus early toys from other makers and some choice advertising too. And Gilbert's Banks brought that and more: a sea of hundreds of period cast iron still banks, doorstops, and the like.

Whatever your collecting interests you're likely to find something to love here, from some serious Abraham Lincoln artifacts at Abe's old Hat to classic country stoneware at both Indian Creek Antiques and John Rudie Antiques.

If you missed this June show you still have two more chances to visit the Sunday at Sandwich Antiques Show. July's edition of the show has come and gone, but there are Sunday at Sandwich Shows still to come on August 9th and October 11th. Just visit www.sundayatsandwichantiques.com for details and directions. Or feel free to give Renie a call at 630-251-3454, or Maureen at 847-321-1712, for additional dealer information. And as always, keep an eye out for all of the Sunday at Sandwich Antiques Shows in the Auction Action Antique News!

Promoters Renie Mitchell (left) and Maureen Little were all smiles for the June 2015 Sunday at Sandwich on May 14th - with sunny skies and balmy temperatures bringing in a good crowd.

Timber Peg Antiques came with some choice country furniture - plus plenty of garden-worthy vintage galvanized pails, tubs, and more.

From Tonka Ty, a litho-tin & celluloid Made-in-Japan windup toy, price tag $275. 630-790-0334

Toy collector Tonka Ty brought advertising too, like this 24" steel Pennzoil Safe Lubrication sign priced at only $75, and trio of vintage outboard motors at only $100 for the lot! 630-790-0334

At the Sandwich Antiques Mart, these adorable child-size Adirondack chairs were only $48 each. 815-786-6122

These circa 1900 Chinese export plant stands at Hitman Antiques were nice buys at $225 and $250. 815-258-0759

More decorative finds from Chicago's Hitman Antiques included the concrete frog fountain at $95. 815-258-0759

Two unusual Tonka trucks from collector Tonka Ty: the near-mint Jeep with Plow priced at $180, the Army Pup at $115. 630-790-0334

Nancy Nelson's Sweet Pea's Primitives and Such had perhaps the best selection of American country antiques at the show, from a classic pine stepback cupboard ($1,695) to a primitive meal bin priced at $325. 630-742-9824

It felt like the "Good Old Days of Sandwich" at the June edition of the new Sunday at Sandwich Antiques Show - filled with quality dealers indoors & out at the historic Sandwich, Illinois Fairgrounds.

Cast iron your thing? Shoppers found an astonishing amount at Gilbert's Banks, from still banks galore to doorstops, bookends, and much more! 262-902-7498

Raconteur John Henry hams it up with a trio of circa 1920s children's store mannequins priced from $115 each. 708-408-6088

At John Rudie Antiques, this useful vintage glass canister set came complete with its wire base, and was priced at $125. 815-877-4375

Sweet Pea's Primitives and Such was packed with that and more, from a six-board Massachusetts blanket chest (sold) to a tabletop sharpening stone in old blue paint priced at $245. 630-742-9824

Two more cast iron picks from Gilbert's Banks: the Hubley elephant on wheels bank priced at $180, the unusual sitting duck doorstop at $300. 262-902-7498

The Sandwich Antiques Mart brought select pieces from their large inventory, including this cool beauty shop station ($249) and ten-hole chicken nest box priced at $250. 815-786-6122

Two aviation-themed cast iron banks from Gilbert's Banks: the Lindberg Monoplane priced at $250, the Kenton Zeppelin at $215. 262-902-7498

At Aberdeen Antiques, this colorful green-swirl enameled turkey roaster came complete with lift-out inner tray, and was priced at $110. 630-377-1868

Two unusual European finds from John Henry Antiques: the Polish folk art hanging altar priced at $198, the hand-painted French clock garniture at $78. 708-408-6088

Lionel Trains were the theme in one corner of Yesterday's Memories, where sat this Lionel City depot house, price tag $150. 630-513-5431

"A piece of History" most certainly describes this signed President Abraham Lincoln letter to the Secretary of War, dated 1864 & on Executive Mansion stationery. Shoppers found it at Abe's Old Hat, asking price $35,000. 217-414-3320

Two nice English transferware examples from Collectibles-n-Things: the Longport "Park Scenery" bowl priced at $369, the Davenport Ironstone "Friburg" ewer at $259. 562-318-9962

Abe's Old Hat brought the Abraham Lincoln memorabilia they're best known for, plus finds like this tiny Van Briggles fairy lamp ($325) and original Chicago Transit Authority Loop "L" Centennial poster priced at $750. 217-414-3320

At Yelena Pinigin's Collectibles-n-Things this antique oak & iron cider press was $350, this grain-printed metal National Cash Register at $650. 562-318-9962

Exceptional cobalt-decorated stoneware awaited at John Rudie Antiques, among them this two-gallon Haxstun & Co. crock ($350) and New York Stoneware Co. jug priced at $215. 815-877-4375

In the Red Wing

Corner at Indian Creek Antiques: a hard-to-find five-gallon large-wing storage jar with lid, asking price $375. 262-363-7338

Football Anyone? Maybe not with this 48-pound concrete & iron windmill weight from Hen's Nest Primitives, made by Baker Windmill in Evansville, Wisconsin and priced at $475. 574-261-5307

Fine furnishings at 4 Ever Lookin' Antiques included a two-piece figured mahogany desk-on-chest ($925) and sinuous 29" Art Nouveau figural lamp priced at $650. 219-863-451

Hen's Nest Primitives lived up to their name, bringing finds like this step-back pewter cupboard in old oyster paint, asking price $875. The 20" wooden bowl with make-do repair was priced at $445. 574-261-5307
