Tribute to Utah

When I ride you I feel like I'm part of something bigger than myself; a team, a oneness of souls. I feel like I have the same courage which carried the Roman armies into battle, like Alexander the Great who conquered Bucephalus, and like a jockey who can ride faster and harder to become a ruler of the race track.

When I ride you I'm free. Free to respect, free to respond honestly without fear of reprisal, free to love, and free to relax. It is oneness with you, with nature, with movement, and with time.

When I close my eyes and feel the power of your body it is like no other. I can hear the soft foot-fall and the cadence of your gait. I smell you, and experience you with every fiber within me.

When I ride you into the arena of life I am a winner, sportsman, and a true equestrian. While I teach you to win in the arena, you are quietly teaching me to win at life.

When I don't have to feed morning and night anymore, when the conversations are silenced between us, when I no longer experience the fresh smell of you after your baths, then life as we knew it will then erode with time, but you Utah will not for you are seared on my heart forever.
