CELEBRATING 71 YEARS OF SERVING DETROIT AND THE DOWNRIVER COMMUNITY*

RAID NETS DRUGS, GUNS AND CASH

Federal investigation aided by Wayne County Sheriff leads to two arrests.

Detroit – A coordinated effort led by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives and with assistance from the Wayne County Sheriff's Office shut down a drug operation on Detroit's west side. Around 10 a.m., ATF agents and officers from the WCSO executed a search warrant on a home near Tireman and Evergreen and also a storage unit in Dearborn that was associated with the subjects. The raid resulted in:

- * 2 men arrested
- * over 1 kilo of Cocaine confiscated
- * several hundred prescription pills (Roxies) confiscated
- * three vehicles impounded
- * 6 handguns
- * an estimated $50,000 in cash (final count pending).

"We continuously receive calls from concerned citizens about dope men setting up shop in the neighborhood," said Sheriff Benny N. Napoleon. "Today, by assisting the ATF we were able to bring some peace to that community."

Flint Residents to Sue City, State over Lead in Drinking Water

DETROIT – Residents of Flint, Mich., together with the ACLU of Michigan and the Natural Resources Defense Council, today announced their intention to sue state and city officials for ongoing violations of the federal Safe Drinking Water Act amid the city's widespread lead-contamination crisis. A lawsuit would force officials to address repeated, systemic failures to follow federal rules designed to protect the public health from dangerous levels of lead exposure.

"In their short-sighted effort to save a buck, the leaders who were supposed to be protecting Flint's citizens instead left them exposed to dangerously high levels of lead contamination," said Michael Steinberg, legal director for the ACLU of Michigan. "Not only were the city and state's actions harmful and misguided. They were illegal, too."

Dangerous amounts of lead leached out of the city's pipes and into the drinking water of Flint's homes and schools for more than a year following a decision by Flint officials to es-

CALL TO ACTION

Shopping Black Friday should start today in your community

There is always so much hype during this time of year as people prepare for Christmas Day. Much of that hype has to do with getting good deals on presents for their loved ones on Black Friday. I do not get into the big commercialization of Christmas Day celebration. Christmas Day is to celebrate the birth of Jesus, so we should be giving him gifts...But that's another column.

I believe Black Friday (shopping and spending lots of money) should be every day, but it should start in our own communities. There are many businesses within all of our communities that are just waiting for your business. They pay taxes to the cities in which we live, they employ people from the community and they donate to charities and programs within the community. Why do you drive pass the businesses in the city to go spend your money elsewhere? I want to encourage you to shop at the businesses in the community, first. If they don't have what you need, then go somewhere else.

I know some people say that they don't shop with the local businesses because either 1) their prices are higher than the bigger stores and 2) their service is not good. Well those are not valid reasons because those issues can be addressed easily. First, their prices are higher because they can't purchase the volume of items that would allow them to price their item lower because they would be stuck on the shelves because you are not shopping with them. This forces them to buy a smaller quantity at a higher price and they have to roll that over to the customers. So if you and your family shop there they can purchase more items at a lower rate and pass those savings on to you. (That's not rocket science) Second, their service is not good. Well tell them about it. That is an easy problem to solve. People from the community are the hardest people to please. But it is possible. In most cases, you know the owner, so just pull the owner aside and share your concerns with them. I'm sure they will make the adjustment. Before you make the decision to not support your local business, think about the service you received at businesses outside of the community. Be honest with yourself. Did you stop shopping with them, when the service wasn't good? I bet you didn't.

So, think about it and plan to Shop Locally.

The Michigan Civil Rights Commission today issued the following statement concerning the terrorist attacks

Over the past several weeks, we have watched in horror as a wave of terrorist attacks have rocked the world, destroying hundreds of lives in Beirut, in Paris, and in the skies over Sinai. We condemn, in the strongest possible terms, the evil of these acts and the individuals who committed them. Attacks on nameless innocents, allegedly in the name of a religion, is among the most vile and reprehensible acts known to mankind.

We offer our deepest condolences and support to the families of those lost and to those harmed by these horrific acts. And yet, we now have another task before us. We must rally around our friends and neighbors – regardless of their religion or ethnicity – to protect them from the hateful response that these attacks may trigger.

In July, the Michigan Civil Rights Commission unanimously passed a resolution expressing our strongest support for the campaign to TAKE ON HATE, calling on “all individuals to fight against prejudice and hate towards Arab and Muslim Americans, and to end discrimination and violence against any group.”

Now, during this most difficult time, we call on all Michigan residents to stand with us and TAKE ON HATE.

Michigan's hardworking Middle Eastern, Arab American and Muslim families are fearful tonight, for nothing more than identifying with their own culture and practicing their own faith. This fear for their most basic of rights should not happen anywhere, but especially not in the United States of America – a country founded on freedom of religion, and built firmly on the bedrock of individual liberty. We cannot allow misinformation, bias and discriminatory rhetoric to alter what we stand for and who we are.

We must strive to live up to the principles upon which this nation was built, and which have ensured that Michigan is home to a thriving and diverse mix of ethnicities, cultures and religions, even as we share certain identities: We are all Michiganders. We are all Americans. We are all members of the human family.

Beyond T-Shirts and Hoodies

By James Clingman - NNPA Columnist

Recollections of my 1995 article on the business of college athletics danced in my head when I heard the news about the University of Missouri football team’s refusal to play until the President of that University, Tim Wolfe, resigns or is dismissed. The players said, “due to his negligence toward marginalized students’ experience” and his lax attitude regarding racial issues on campus, they would no longer participate in football activities. (Prior to the publishing date for this article, Tim Wolfe resigned.)

As I noted in 1995, and in several articles on college athletics and the billions of dollars they generate, money is the name of the game. When coaches of college teams earn several million dollars per year and half-billion dollar stadiums are being built, the actual laborers, the players, get lost in the shuffle.

Well, the players on the University of Missouri football team are far from being invisible as they are making a statement that has divulged an economic vulnerability. By the time you read this the situation may have been resolved, but even if it is there are lessons to be learned and actions to be replicated from this case.

According to an article on NBC Sports, if the University of Missouri had canceled the game with BYU, the Tigers would have been on the hook for $1,000,000. Everything boils down to dollars, if you look deeply enough, and the young men on Missouri’s team are illuminating that reality by their actions. The same thing could be done in professional athletics as well, in an effort to change the business as usual approach to racial inequities and mistreatment in the general society. It would be much more effective than t-shirts and hoodies.

Instead of wearing shirts with a nice-sounding slogan on them, or hoodies that connote illegal killings of Black folks, black arm-bands, or writing something on their shoes, Missouri football players chose the “nuclear option,” as some in Congress would call it. They put their prospective livelihoods on the line, and they put their scholarships on the line by actually doing something substantive rather than symbolic in response to their legitimate concerns about the conditions on their campus.

The sacrifice these young people are making cannot be overstated, and I commend them for being strong and committed enough to put core values before fame. I also hope the issue is resolved before this article goes to press; while they deserve our support and accolades, they should not have to suffer a loss of individual scholarships and their chances to make it to the professional ranks simply because they took a principled stand against racism. Other athletes have already fought that battle and some are still paying the price decades later.

Tommie Smith, John Carlos, Muhammad Ali, Curt Flood, and Craig Hodges, just to name a few, took their stands against the system and took the blows that their peers were unwilling to take. They paid a hefty price for having the temerity to stand up and speak out. The Missouri football players now find themselves in a crucible of consciousness, and we should stand with them and assure that they do not suffer the same fate as their forerunners. If they are “blacklisted” by the NFL, Black people—and other sympathizers should boycott NFL games.

I pray that someone other than the usual suspects, who are simply looking for the nearest camera, microphone, and a big check to boot, will come to the students’ aide and help them work out their situation in the long term. They have done their part by exposing the underbelly of racial mistreatment at the University, and they have also exposed the school to a financial liability that more than likely does not end with Brigham Young University. How many more games are on Missouri’s schedule?

The economic lesson from the players’ threatened “work stoppage,” juxtaposed against Jonathan Butler’s life-threatening hunger strike, is quite revealing. Butler’s life was virtually ignored, but when the dollars came into play, things changed right away. The message: A Black life does not matter, but Black dollars do matter. Considering all the critical issues facing Black people in this country, we would do well to use economic power instead of relying on political influence to make appropriate changes to our overall condition.

We should celebrate the Missouri players for taking the “road less traveled” as they fight for their rights on their campus; they chose substance over symbolism, action over passivity. Rather than merely wearing their complaints on their chests or their shoes, they chose to wear their concerns on their hearts by letting the world know they are quite serious; they took their protest to the only level that gets results—the economic level. Much respect to those young men and their supporters at the university.

James Clingman is the nation’s most prolific writer on economic empowerment for Black people. His latest book, Black Dollars Matter! Teach your dollars how to make more sense, is available on his website, Blackonomics.com.

Training for Newly Elected Officials in Hapening throughout State

ANN ARBOR, Michigan – The elections are over and now the real work begins.

The trainings are Nov. 18 in Ferrysburg; Dec. 1 in Grayling; Dec. 9 in Lansing; Dec. 10 in Southfield; Dec. 16 in Birch Run; and Jan. 20 in Ann Arbor. A session also took place in Wayne. Go here for details: <http://www.mml.org/events/calendar.htm>.

Each session runs from 5:30-9 p.m. and covers core topics that will help educate first-time elected, as well as experienced officials, on the basic functions they will need to know in their roles as public leaders.

Topics include an overview of basic local government, the Freedom of Information Act, council roles and responsibilities, business meeting basics, government finance, an overview of the Open Meetings Act and a panel discussion on “what I’ve learned as election officials” from experienced area elected leaders.

The cost is $90 for League members and $145 for League nonmember government officials.

The Paris Attacks

By Jim Abeare - Contributing Writer

The world was shocked by the recent attacks on Paris. French President Hollande called it “an act of war,” and two days later started bombing ISIS strongholds in Iraq.

ISIS took responsibility in the attacks. A leader who takes decisive action, you got to love it.

The attack started outside the Stade de France during a France-Germany soccer match, with two explosions.

I always wondered when an attack would occur at a sporting event. This is Paris’s second attack in less than a year. In January a mass shooting took place at the satirical magazine Charlie Hebdo.

I also applaud France’s quick action. American politicians are probably trying to figure out how to help. Some are trying to make political hay out of it, like Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump.

Really Mr. Trump you say that things would’ve been different if the victims were armed. Over 120 people were killed in what is the worse attack in Paris since World War Two.

The Syrian refugee crisis took a hit as one of the terrorists was said to have come into Europe pretending to be a refugee.

Twenty-seven states said that they will refuse to accept any Syrian refugees. France is now a nation in mourning and a nation at war.

Not Too Late

by Janine Folks By Janine Folks - Religion Columnist way that works and serves a purpose.

You can do a new thing, even if you think you're old. I met a dying woman in her 70s. At age 50, she decided to go to nursing school. She finished nursing school in two years and got a job right away. An amazing nurse, she received an award for Nurse of the Year. She got 20 good years of nursing under her belt and left this earth feeling good about that. I left realizing that you don't have to think you're too old to do something new.

Some people accomplish great things at a young age. In the Bible, we read of men becoming kings at a very young age. Today, we see child stars that appear to be very successful.

Perhaps you were not a child prodigy and now you're older feeling like you have accomplished very little. Maybe there is much you still wish to achieve. So you were not voted most influential under 30 or 40. Maybe there are things you thought you would accomplish before you leave this earth and now you thing you have blown it. Think it's too late.

Think again. No matter what the reasons are that you did not do what you wish you had done, there is still hope. Maybe you won't do those things the way you imagined originally, but you can still do them in a

There was a couple in the Book of Genesis in the Bible, Abraham and Sarah. They never had a child. They had gotten old, way past Sarah's child bearing age. At their age, they had accepted that it just would not happen for them. So when God spoke to them and told them they would have a child, Sarah laughed hysterically, "A baby at my age? Yeah, right..." (Gen. 18). That was a mistake.

Don't doubt what you can do when you're old, especially as a child of God. The dying woman's wisdom inspired me to have courage to try new things, even at a seasoned age. So I gave roller derby a try and I played on a league at age 43. My seasoned age made me better, wiser. I was not the fastest or most agile, but I knew how to play smart. That made me effective in my own way. God restores. He said, "And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten..." (Joel 2:25)

God can restore you when you begin to walk in that direction. What have you longed to do? Start a new career? Go back to school? Get fit? Change some self-defeating habits? Get your life together? Write a plan? A new hobby or activity?

Pray about it and do it. If you fail, you can say, "I tried and gave it all I had." That in itself is satisfying. Don't die with a 'what if?' Decide to either let the dream go, or go for it!

God is known for doing a new thing and making a way out of no way (Isa. 43:19). Sing to Him a new song! (Psa. 33:3) Blessings.

Board of Directors with the Polish Legion of American Veterans Post 10," he said. "There was an event on Veteran's Day, and the post commander told me I needed to be there because I had been nominated for Hamtramck Veteran of the Year. It involved a celebration that included a simulation of the 21 Guns salute and a toast. In the end, I tied with another nominee and won; it was a great honor." For Bugaj, these types of celebrations are certainly well deserved, but honoring Native American veterans is important throughout the year.

With more than 30 active members, NAVASEMI provides services throughout Southeastern Michigan, offering resource assistance for veterans in need of medical care, financial support, and more. Also participating in various local activities (i.e. Pow Wows and air shows), the organization recently performed blessing ceremonies for deceased Native vets whose unclaimed remains were discovered in the Detroit metro area.

"One of our former members works for the Department of Justice, and is also involved with a program called Missing in America," said Bugaj. "In St. Clair Shores, remains were stored with no one to claim them, and they found that some belonged to Native American veterans. We were asked to do a blessing ceremony, and did the same for remains found in the Detroit city morgue."

Beyond performing native ceremonies, Bugaj - a member of the Little Traverse Bay Band Ottawa tribe - continues to ensure that indigenous veterans are acknowledged for their contributions to America, even organizing a dual display honoring Veteran's Day and Native American Heritage Month at ITT Technical Institute (he was asked to continue this tradition after graduating in March 2015). In the end, as we celebrate American freedom at the end of each year, sacrifices made by Native Americans must be applauded - throughout the month of November and beyond.

"I want people to know that there were more than just John Wayne and a bunch of pale faces running these wars. There were blacks who were fighting, Japanese Americans, and probably every nationality in the melting pot," said Bugaj. "It's also important to acknowledge that Natives have fought with the United States throughout the Revolutionary and Civil Wars; we were involved in the charge up San Juan Hill with Teddy Roosevelt and the Rough Riders. We went to battle during World War I and World War II, bringing code talking along with 6 or 7 other languages used for that purpose. We've fought in the Korean and Vietnam Wars, and every battle since."

"Ultimately, I want people to know what has truly happened to Native American people since the Europeans arrived here, and recognize and acknowledge our many contributions to this country."

RIVER ROUGE

November 6th, 2015

At 0306hrs, officers were dispatched to the Block of 200 Polk Street on a report of a male in a parked vehicle, with his head resting on the steering wheel. Officers arrived and knocked on the door of the silver 1998 Chevrolet 1500, and the driver woke up and he was asked to step out of the vehicle. Officers immediately smelled a strong odor of intoxicants emitted from his breath. Officers asked the male if he knew where he was and he stated somewhere on Goodell Street. The male stumbled as he walked and the officer told him he would conduct a Field Sobriety Test and asked him if he knew his alphabet and the male stated yes.

The male started with A and stopped at N and couldn't get past it. Then officer asked the male to touch his nose but he couldn't place his index finger. He was placed under arrest for OUIL and transported to the police station where he was booked a;llowed to make a call, then housed. The vehicle was impounded.

Zug Island at 1200 West Jefferson Avenue. He states between the hours of 1530 and 0700hrs, on November 9th, 2015, a company utility vehicle was stolen from Zug Island. The employee states he parked the white 2007 Ford Pickup in the employee parking lot. At 1530hrs he placed the keys to the pick up inside of the work trailer that is also on Zug Island. He stated the next morning at 0700hrs, he returned to work and discovered the hideaway box missing disturbed and when he opened it the keys were missing.

chew Detroit's water supply in favor of using the Flint River as the City's primary drinking water source. Not long after the switch, residents began to complain about the smell and discoloration of the water and, later, physical ailments stemming from the tainted water.

"The community of Flint is strong and united in our commitment to repair the harm lead exposure has inflicted on our children and families. We are taking a stand so that our community can heal the damage that has been done and work together so that justice can prevail," said Pastor Allen Overton, a leader of the Concerned Pastors for Social Action.

"This action is about holding the government accountable for failing to protect the public health of an entire community," said Anjali Waikar, an environmental justice staff attorney at the Natural Resources Defense Council. "This case also highlights a troubling trend in which the government is willing to turn a blind eye when it comes to protecting the lives of poor, Black people," Waikar said.

Officials working on behalf of Flint insisted for several months that the water was safe. However, water tests conducted by experts from Virginia Tech proved those assurances to be wrong, and a study by a local pediatrician that showed that the proportion of Flint kids with elevated blood lead levels had doubled since the City switched water sources. After officials could no longer deny that the community's drinking water was contaminated, Michigan Gov. Rick Snyder finally conceded that Flint should stop using the river water and return to the Detroit water system.

Despite this move, though, city and state officials have continued to violate federal legal requirements for monitoring and sampling tap water for lead, notifying the public about water-testing results and maintaining corrosion control from Flint's lead pipes.

"So much irreparable harm has been done as a direct result of the failures and lack of oversight perpetrated by the City of Flint and Michigan officials who are the very people we relied on to keep us safe. This lawsuit gives me hope that this will stop and no other city will have to endure the physical, property, and emotional damage that Flint residents have," said Melissa Mays of Water You Fighting For, a Flint-based organization.

There is no safe level of lead exposure. The toxic effects of lead on virtually every system in the body, and particularly on the developing brains of young children, are well documented.

Flint Water

It can also contribute to high blood pressure and other health problems in adults. Even low levels of lead in the blood have been shown to affect IQ, ability to pay attention, and academic achievement, effects that are irreversible.

The Notice of Intent to Sue was served on behalf of Concerned Pastors for Social Action, an association of religious leaders from Flint; Melissa Mays, a Flint resident; the ACLU of Michigan; and the Natural Resources Defense Council. The groups assert that since April 2014, the City of Flint and Michigan state officials have failed to monitor and control for lead in Flint's drinking water and maintain a program to assist Michigan schools with lead testing and remediation, in violation of the federal Safe Drinking Water Act. If City of Flint and Michigan state officials – including Governor Rick Snyder and Dan Wyant, Director of Michigan Department of Environmental Quality - do not remedy violations under the Safe Drinking Water Act within sixty days, the groups intend to file a lawsuit in federal court.

Flint and state officials have known since 2011 that choosing the Flint River as a drinking water source could result in lead contamination issues, due to its highly corrosive properties. Yet state and city officials insisted that the water was safe to drink - even after testing found dangerously high lead levels in some residents' tap water. Citizen concerns about high lead levels were dismissed by state and city officials as "near hyster[cal]" and "irresponsible," despite well-established evidence that there is no safe level of lead exposure, and that even low levels of lead in the blood have been shown to affect IQ, ability to pay attention, and academic achievement, effects that are irreversible.

The Notice of Intent to Sue is required under the Safe Drinking Water Act as a prerequisite to filing suit.

The fun will begin at 3 p.m. with “The Christmas Parade” (free admission), to be held along the ring road inside Heritage Park. It will feature Fire and Police vehicles (including the Taylor Fire Department’s newest vehicle), various civic organizations and, or course, the arrival of Santa Claus!

The parade will begin at approximately 3 p.m. near the Northline Road entrance to Heritage Park (which will be closed for this event) and will march to the Sheridan Center Open Air Pavilion.

At approximately 4 p.m., “The Sheridan Center Tree Lighting” (free admission) will include entertainment by the Trillium Academy orchestra and the Taylor Community Chorus, presentations, ice sculptures, giveaways, rides and the initial lighting of a huge new Christmas tree that will be located in the open air pavilion for the rest of the holiday season.

Afterward, the entire crowd will march next door to the Activities Building for an approximate 5 p.m. “Grand Opening of Santa’s Magic Forest” (GA $3, children under 3 are free). Enjoy Downriver’s finest indoor Christmas display. Get your photos taken with Santa Claus ($8)!

Then wrap up the evening with a 6 p.m. “Bonfire and Tree Lighting” at the Taylor Conservatory (free admission). Enjoy refreshments and song and the warmth of the bonfire before the Conservatory lights its Christmas tree to cap off the day’s events!

Officials from the City of Taylor, Downriver Fish & Loaves Food Pantry and the Taylor Conservatory & Botanical Gardens hope this event will be the start of an ever-expanding kickoff celebration of the Holiday Season. Sponsors of this event are Biggby Coffee, Target and Meijer.

The Taylor Conservatory Foundation is also a non-profit 501(c) (3) organization whose mission is creating beautiful public spaces, promoting the arts and sciences, and preserving the natural environment by promoting positive community outcomes with its programs designed for a multitude of social, educational, and environmental needs.

PARKING NOTES: Spectators for this event should use the Pardee Street entrance to Heritage Park and park in front of the Sheridan Center Open Air Pavilion. Inkster holds ceremony to relocate veteran’s memorial

By Shelby Jefferson – Telegram Staff Reporter

Firefighters display the 3 foot plaque that was removed from the old site at the old city hall

Last Wednesday, Inkster conducted a ceremony to remove a veteran’s memorial from its old city hall grounds. The event marks an effort to permanently relocate the fixture to the new quarters located on Trowbridge Street. “Our memorial sat next to the old city hall, which has been abandoned since 2008,” said Inkster Fire Chief John Adams. “I felt it was time for us to do something a little different than what we’ve done with the status quo, and relocate the memorial on Veteran’s Day. I’m a veteran myself, so I think it’s important to honor them – especially those who gave the ultimate sacrifice. We need to make that a priority regardless of what’s going on in our community.” The 20 minute ceremony featured remarks from American Legion members, and concluded with the removal of a 3 foot glass plaque embedded in a marble monument. At the events conclusion, the fixture was temporarily moved to a prominent place within the fire department. In the coming months, a committee will convene to arrange for the memorial’s permanent transfer to Inkster’s new city hall. The team includes Adams, Chief of Police William Riley, Public Services Deputy Director Jerome Bivins, former Councilman Michael Canty, American Legion members Roosevelt Stubbs and Arthur Blank, and Councilman Timothy Williams. Within the next year, Adams hopes to have raised enough funds to give the monument a permanent home. “I created this committee, and it’s open for everyone to participate. If anyone’s interested from the community, they can contact me to be included in the decision making. We’re going to be doing a lot of fundraising to make this happen,” said Adams. “Our ultimate goal is to get the monument back up as quickly as we can; I think we can complete it within the next 12 months. I don’t foresee it happening by Memorial Day of next year, but I can see us doing a rededication next Veterans Day. “Other things we want to do may take a little longer. For example, we’re looking to put benches in place, along with some other features to allow family members to come and reflect on their loved ones, and what the memorial represents. All of this is very important to all of us.” If you’re interested in joining the Veteran’s Memorial Committee, please contact Chief John Adams at (313) 563-9874, or at jadams@city-ofinkster.com.

Panthers Football Earns a Permit to Play in the Semi-Finals

By Butch Davis - Sports Reporter

River Rouge Head Coach, Corey Parker (on knee) is surrounded by his history making coaching staff after their Regional finals win against Algonac

"They showed us a different offense today that they haven't shown all year," River Rouge coach Corey Parker said. "So we just had to coach it up on the fly. Their coach did a good job of masking what he does, so I'm proud of the way my defense was able to play through it. We've got a lot of young guys - a lot of sophomores - they were out there just fighting and trying to figure it out." Yes, the Panthers of River Rouge (11-1) advance by beating the Algonac Muskrats 51-25 in the regional finals and now will move on to the Division 5 semifinals, where they will take on Ida on Saturday afternoon at Novi High School for a chance to advance to Ford Field for the Finals. Algonac took a lead late in the first quarter with some hard running and some short passes as Joe McKee finish the drive with a one yard run and after adding a one point kick conversion took a 7-0 lead over the Panthers. However on the following possession the Panthers started a campaign of their own late into the quarter and merging early in the second quarter as quarterback Antoine Burgess who ran the football often in this drive finish with a one yard run to put his team on the scoreboard. Extra point failed, Algonac continue to lead the game 7-6. River Rouge defense held the Muskrats and received the ball back and again drove the football down the field for their second touchdown in the quarter. Again Burgess running the ball for a 10 yard score into the end zone for the Panthers to take a 12-7 lead. The lead was short lived for the Panthers, as Joe McKee of Algonac ran the ball 66 yards for the touchdown giving the Muskrats the lead back 13-12. Not to be outdone Antoine Burgess with 4:46 remaining took the ball to the house on a

56- yard run, his third touchdown of the game providing Rouge with an 18-13 halftime lead. In the third quarter after the halftime break, Algonac took a lead early in the quarter with again some hard running and some short passes. Quarterback A.J Garhott threw the football to his receiver Owen Kaatz for a 38 yard catch and run TD to give the lead back to the Muskrats 19-18 as the two point conversion was no good. The lead again seesaw this time to River Rouge as again, you guessed it, quarterback Antoine Burgess ran for a 13 yard touchdown; his fourth TD of the game to put his team in the driver seat as the Panthers would trail no more in this game leading 24-19. The Panthers defense and special team chipped in with 3:04 to play in the third quarter as Aaron Vinson stripped the ball and Robert Blackwell recovered the ball at Algonac's 15-yard line to set up Burgess' fifth touchdown, which made it 30-19. In addition, on the first play of the following drive, River Rouge's Cornelius McGill intercepted a tipped pass and returned it 36 yards for a touchdown, 36-19 with 2:19 to play in the third quarter. Rouge polish off Algonac early in the fourth quarter with another Burgess touchdown of three yards and an extra point try by Leonard Molette gave them a 43-19 lead. Although Algonac's Joe McKee ran for a 17-yard touchdown with 7:03 to play in the quarter, however, the 2-point conversion attempt was no good, leaving the score at 43-25. Burgess' sixth touchdown run with 4:04 to play in the fourth quarter, followed by a two-point conversion, put the game away and received a ticket to the semifinals in Novi. River Rouge quarterback Antoine Burgess rushed for 211 yards in 23 carries and six touchdowns said after the game, "It means a lot, this is history in our school. The whole city was on my back, so I told them I was going to give them a W."

The Lions have Heart as they win at Lambeau Field

By Butch Davis

The 2015 season still looking pretty bleak indeed, however, this year's Detroit Lions will always have at least one mark of merit, the Lions stop road skid against Packers with 18-16 win over the Green Bay Packers at Lambeau Field, the Lions have now won three out of the past four games over Green Bay. It marks the first time the Lions have won three games in a four-game against the Packers since a span of four games that covered the 1998-2000 seasons. The team's win at Green Bay snapped a 23-game regular season losing streak on the road against the Packers. The team's last road win occurred December 15, 1991. Detroit improved to 11-5 (2-2 in 2015) against NFC North teams since 2013. Over the past three years, the Lions are tied for the third-best record against divisional opponents in the NFL. The Lions have the most divisional wins among all NFC North teams over the past three years, (4-2 in 2013, 5-1 in 2014 and 2-2 so far in 2015). Wide receiver Golden Tate rushed for a first down on an 11-yard rush and moved the Lions into scoring position with a 43-yard reception on the Lions' nine-play, 80-yard scoring drive in the fourth quarter that resulted in a touchdown, giving the Lions an 18-10 lead with 1:57 left in the fourth quarter. On defense, safety Isa Abdul-Quddus tied a career-high with a team-tying high eight tackles in the Lions' win, however, it was cornerback Crezdon Butler fresh from practice squad who made a big play for the Lions as he stop a pass in the end zone to stop a two point conversion to continue the lead to give the Lions the victory. By the way, the Lions only had 10 men on the field for Packers' game-winning field goal try that was no good. Detroit Lions Head Coach Jim Caldwell said these words this past Monday, "I'll just begin by saying pretty much the same thing we said yesterday, I think the guys played hard and played tough. A lot of great effort out there and guys made some plays. Defense did a great job of shutting down their offense and giving our offense a chance to kind of get on track and move the ball, and our kicking game, in terms of the return game, was pretty strong there with the 104-yard kickoff return and the 23-yard punt return. We played a decent field position game, Sam (Martin) did a nice job punting the ball, our coverage teams did a decent job in that area and certainly made a difference in terms of their drive start average to ours and I think that was really the difference in the game. But some young guys played really well for us out there on defense and corners and ran around well and played tough in some difficult circumstances. Then I think, offensively, we were opportunistic, when we had to get it we got it, but couldn't just completely put it away. But you wouldn't expect that to happen to a good football team like that in a place where it's very, very tough to win. So really proud of the guys, really proud of how they hung together and played. Been a bit of adversity for them over the last couple weeks or so, so it's good to see them hang in there and battle together.

Test: In accordance to the Audit Technique Guide (ATG) Chapter 3 - Determining Taxability of the Note- How to Apply the Law to the Documents. (Determination test for all Corporations)

A variety of tests shall be met for the Internal Revenue Code when using the Global Security, Definitive Security, Selling Group Agreement and an Offering Circular:
“Test 1 – One of the tests of the Global Security is to be a type of security that would be required to be registered if issued in the United States. For example, in order to be considered taxable, a Temporary Global Security issued for foreign debt would have to be a registered-required obligation. Under IRC section 163(f)(2)(A)(iii), a Temporary Global Security may not be considered a registration-required obligation if it does not (at issue) have a maturity of more than one year.
Under Treas. Reg. §1.163-5(c)(ii)(B), the term "temporary global security" means a security which is held for the benefit of the purchasers of the obligations of the issuer and interests in which are exchangeable for securities in definitive, registered, or bearer form prior to its stated maturity. The term, however, does not include an obligation that is not retired within a reasonable period of time after the completion of the initial offering. Rev. Rul. 89-9, 1989-1 C.B. 76.
Test Two – A security is also not considered a "registration-required obligation" if issued by a natural person, or is not a type offered to the Public. (IRC Section 163(f)(2)(A)(i) and (ii))
Exercise Two - Inspect the Global Security in Exhibit A-3, the Definitive Security in Exhibit A-4, the Selling Group Agreement in Exhibit A-5, and the Offering Circular in Exhibit A-6. List the items found in the Securities, Selling Group Agreement and Offering Circular that would indicate that applying test two would result in a registration-required obligation.
Answer to Exercise Two - The following descriptions contained on the Securities, Selling Group Agreement, and Offering Circular indicate that the Securities in question are not issued by a natural person and are a type of security offered to the public:
Offering Circular – The mere existence of an Offering Circular indicates it is being offered to the public. The mention of an application to list the notes on the Luxembourg Stock exchange is another indication of a public offering and availability. Example Corporation issues the bonds, and the corporation is not a natural person.
Selling Group Agreement – Reference to an Offering Circular issued in connection with the notes indicates that they are available to the public. The Selling Group Agreement also indicates that Example Corporation, and not a natural person issue the notes. A statement that the notes will be offered to a selling group consisting of banks, brokers, and dealers indicates that the notes are available to the public.

Definitive Security – The face of the note indicates that it is issued by Example Corporation, not a natural person. The fact that the interest and principal is payable to the bearer of the attached coupons the amount shown is an indication that it is available to the public, as anyone can be a bearer of the coupon. Global Security – Once again, the face of the note indicates that it is issued by Example Corporation, not a natural person. The Temporary Global Security also will make payment of the principal amount to the bearer of the Global Security, and the Global Security states it shall in all respects be entitled to the same benefits and subject to the same terms and conditions of the definitive securities and those contained in the Fiscal Agency Agreement, except that neither the Holder hereof nor the beneficial owners of their Global Security shall be entitled to receive payment of interest thereof. This statement relates to the terms and conditions of the Definitive Security, Selling Group Agreement, and Offering Circular, as such available to the public. Test 3 – If a registration-required obligation is issued not in registered form, it would be subject to the tax on Obligations Not in Registered Form if it fails to meet the exception of a registration-required obligation under IRC section 4701(b)(1)(B), which states, "Certain obligations not included. – An obligation is described in this subparagraph if – (i) there are arrangements reasonably designed to ensure that such obligation will be sold (or resold in connection with the original issue) only to a person who is not a United States person, and (ii) interest on such obligation is payable only outside the United States and its possessions, and (iii) on the face of such obligation there is a statement that any United States person who holds such obligation will be subject to limitations under the United States income tax laws." Test Results: The natural person is not a securities nor a registration-required obligation. Obligation: The natural person is not in the form of an obligation such as bonds, debentures, notes, certificates, instruments of in debt or any other things. THINGS- By this word is understood every object, except man, which may become an active subject of right. (Reference Bouvier's Law Dictionary 1856 Edition) Test results summary: The natural person cannot be registered for an excise tax or offered for public exchange. The natural person is not a debt instrument, artificial person, nor could be property publicly offered and issue for sale. The natural person rather by participation, willing or unwilling cannot incorporate there mere existence. The STATE OF MICHIGAN PARENT CORPORATION- D&B D-U-N-S Number 05-469-8428 has demonstrated and displayed immoral consideration by inducing incompatibility to the natural person as a trading instrument or a corporation, thing etc. placing an obligation that was void and invalid introduce by fraud. Also called artificial person, juridical entity, juristic person, or legal person. See also body corporate-ecclesiastical goods. OBLIGATION- In its general and most extensive sense, obligation is synonymous with duty. In a more technical meaning, it is a tie which binds us to pay or to do something agreeably to the laws and customs of the country in which the obligation is made. The term obligation also signifies the instrument or writing by which the contract is witnessed. And in another sense, an obligation still subsists, although the civil obligation is said to be a bond containing a penalty, with a condition annexed for the payment of money, performance of covenants or the like; it differs from a bill, which is generally without a penalty or condition, though it may be obligatory. Inkster Native Returns Home with Groundbreaking Film “Chain Music”

Chain Music uses entertainment to redirect youth

DETROIT – Inkster-born Malcolm Muhammad and award-winning video journalist, writer, director and producer Jadaun “Jay” Sweet premiered their debut short film in 2014 in Tallahassee, FL, where Take Heed Films was founded by the Florida A&M University graduates, to overwhelmingly positive responses. Since then, there has been several successful screenings across the country. Over the past two months, “Chain Music” took home the Founder’s Choice Award at the Urban Mediamakers Film Festival in Atlanta, GA and the Best Innovative Short Film Award at the Orlando Urban Film Festival.

Now, Take Heed Films is bringing this show to Detroit. The screening will take place on Saturday, November 28th at the Whispers Rental Hall located at 20410 W. 7 Mile Rd. For more information on the film and to purchase tickets, visit www.chainmusicthemovie.com. “Chain Music” explores the idea of methods used by the music industry to schematically exploit Hip Hop music, its artists, and audiences as a means to control cultural behavior.

“As a young African-American male who was afforded the opportunity to receive a college education this film hits home for me,” said Sweet, a Nashville resident. “Every young person does not have the opportunity to be enlightened and educated, and as such can easily be misguided. My vision is to use my work in film as a method to creatively provide insight and understanding to those most heavily impacted by the cultural manipulation that occurs in the music industry, which is arguably one of the top influencers of our youth.”

Playground Solutionz founder Christopher “Play” Martin of the pioneering Hip Hop duo “Kid ‘n Play” serves as executive producer of “Chain Music.” Martin, Sweet, Malcolm Muhammad and Take Heed Films marketing director Leanne Brunache are currently in the developmental stages of several projects, including a “Chain Music” full-length feature film and a webseries tentatively titled “Game of Life.”

“The message in this film really has something for everyone, people from all walks of life,” Sweet said. “We want to educate, empower and inspire the masses. This is a people’s film. And while it is definitely entertaining and exciting, it also serves the purpose of providing our audiences with what is rightfully theirs – information.”

“Chain Music” is the inaugural film of Take Heed Films, an innovative production company focused on delivering a consistent uplifting message of enlightenment and inspiration about and for inner city and impoverished youth. Take Heed endeavors to use entertainment platforms to expose and redirect youth toward positive and meaningful opportunities.

ASK ALMA

Ex’s & Taxes

Should I give my Ex a Break on Support Payment? Dear Alma, I think I know what I’m going to do but I’m curious as to what you think about my situation. My husband and I were married for eight years. We have three boys. We are now divorced. He gets them almost every weekend and is very active in their lives. He has however been behind over the years with his child support payments but last year he paid on time every month. When he filed for his income tax return this year, he was told the money would go towards his back child support payments. He called, explained his situation and asked me if I would give him part of the money. The back child support check will come to me. I have not remarried, so no, I’m not working with a double income. Again, I know what I’m thinking but I’d like to know what do you think I should do? Name withheld

If you’re a super fan of Ask Alma, and I think that you are, you know I’ve got a soft spot when it comes to our fathers. I don’t know if it’s because of the amazing relationship I had with my Dad, my incredible male friends who are fathers, or the fact that I have a remarkable son, who’s a father – there’s no two ways about it, fathers hold a special place in my heart. Specifically, when it comes to your ex, the boys Dad, his actions speak loud and hearty, he’s handling his business. He has buckled his boots and put his best foot forward. Pops has met every payment, on time and that Sweetheart is a blessing. I’m sure at some point, something came up – maybe a flat tire, the need for a new suit or the electric bill was extra high one month ~ and he still came through for his boys. You and I both know as mothers, there’s always a bump in the road, without a doubt Here’s a shout out to the mamas who navigate them every day. Speaking of every day, your quandary reminds me of a quote I recently read from DMX. He said, “Every day, I get closer to God. Every day, my will to do the right thing gets stronger”. In that quote, I see a man who’s trying, just like your ex-husband, to be a better father.

I’m not sure of your answer, but my answer is yes, I think you should extend to him a few dollars. The amount ought to be of your choosing, since you do have a firsthand knowledge of what’s needed by the boys. Your ex is finally willing and able, offering to you and his sons, his best. Take the time to appreciate it and him, and return to him a portion of your best. Because of your boys, the end of your marriage doesn’t have to be the end of a respectful relationship. Offer up a cup of compassion and a fist full of forgiveness. Tenderheartedly handle your business mama, and while you’re extending that hand to be a blessing, hold it open just a minute, to receive one as well.

Alma

LeBron James basketball clinic comes to River Rouge High School

By Shelby Jefferson – Telegram Staff Reporter

Sabbath Middle School Positive Behavior Coach, Chuck Bailey, poses with young clinic participants and James' LeBroncierge, "Marcus"

River Rouge High School welcomed several youth from the Detroit metro area on Wednesday, with basketball players coming in everywhere from The Family Detroit's AAU team to Sabbath Middle School. The occasion – presented by Cleveland Cavaliers Forward LeBron James – allowed for kids to show off their skills and complete drills and exercises regularly utilized by the NBA star himself. Each participant was given a complimentary Nike t-shirt, and received a pair of sneakers from King James' new line to wear throughout the 2 hour long event. James – who was in town for a matchup against the Detroit Pistons – was unable to attend the camp, but sent several coaches in addition to various representatives from Nike. The main delegate, in fact, was one of James' oldest friends. "I'm LeBron's right hand man," said a Nike Rep simply identified as "Marcus". "He sends me when he has games in certain places, and I talk to and inspire kids from middle and high schools around the country. You can pretty much refer to me as his 'LeBroncierge'." Several coaches throughout the district were also present to observe the clinic, in addition to Chuck Bailey, Positive Behavior Coach at Sabbath Middle School. As a former basketball player, Bailey recognizes the importance of using athletics to build positive attributes within local youth. "I'm actively involved with basketball, so I thought why not bring this here?" he said. "We can influence kids through sports because it can teach discipline and leadership, while helping them become better citizens and leaders in our community. It's very important." In addition, Bailey acknowledges another advantage presented by the clinic: introducing middle-school aged students to the region. As a Choice Enrollment District, River Rouge Schools welcomes youth from all around. "This is great because it exposes these kids to our district. Some of them don't know much about it," Bailey said. "They may think that it's really far, but that's definitely not the case. In fact, it's really close to downtown. Many of these kids have never experienced our nice facilities, or even seen how well our football team is doing. So this exposure is good. Hopefully it will have an impact."
